

CONCLUSION

The split between those socialists who advocated political organization and action and those who opposed it, which had broken the ranks of the First and Second Internationals, also came to the Third. The break in 1922 between the syndicalists and the RFLU, the trade union appendage of the CI, constituted that breach. It was soon followed by the establishment of a syndicalist International. The formation of the IWMA, however, clearly did not come simply in response to the establishment of a politically dominated RFLU, as has sometimes been suggested.¹ Prior to the First World War the syndicalists were consciously seeking a more durable and representative form of international organizational expression. At a time when the Bolsheviks were still content to work within the Second International, the syndicalists had already appealed for a new and genuinely revolutionary association. The continuity of their international efforts is evident from the fact that all the major syndicalist organizations represented in the London congress of 1913, were represented at the founding congress of the IWMA in Berlin ten years later. Far from provoking its formation, the Bolshevik Revolution and the emergence of communist internationalism served to delay the emergence of a syndicalist International, as well as to reinforce its libertarian basis.

The London congress constituted the pioneering effort of syndicalist internationalism not only in organizational terms, but in doctrinal expression as well. The first international declaration of principles that issued from London in 1913 explicitly condemned the state, demanding the destruction of the political as well as the economic structure of capitalism. The syndicalists assembled in London, in short, equated syndicalism with anarcho-syndicalism. This doctrinal determination received fuller expression ten years later, with the emergence of the IWMA on an explicitly anarcho-syndicalist foundation. Unlike the pre-war CGT, moreover, the IWMA declared not its official neutrality vis-à-vis political parties, but its opposition to such parties. The IWMA carried the implications of syndical self-sufficiency to its logical conclusion. The distinctive development of the CGT, its structure, the composition and outlook of its membership, contributed to imposing ideological restraints upon the French organization. Unhindered by such constraints, the syndicalists united in the IWMA were able to articulate the position of revolutionary syndicalism in a more complete and uncompromising form, shorn of the ambiguities and inconsistencies of the official policy of the pre-war CGT, as expressed in the Charte d'Amiens. Equally important in accounting for the vigor and sharpness with which the IWMA enunciated its position was the fact that the syndicalists were by then locked in a fierce ideological conflict with the communists, and had witnessed what appeared to them to be the corruption of a social and economic revolution in Russia by a political faction.

That syndicalist efforts to found a revolutionary International antedated those of the Bolsheviks meant that with the formation of the Third International relations between communists and syndicalists, though naturally coloured by varying national circumstances, were inevitably viewed from an international perspective. For the communists, the obvious question was whether the syndicalists could be incorporated into the framework of communist internationalism. For the syndicalists the question became whether Moscow could construct a revolutionary labour organization within which they could find their international aspirations fulfilled. The initial fascination of all revolutionary groups with the Russian Revolution provided the Bolsheviks with a tool that they could and did exploit to the full in their efforts to achieve ideological and strategic hegemony over the whole of the revolutionary movement. When issues of revolutionary organization were broached, however, the ideological divergences between syndicalists and communists emerged with full force.

Principles of organization constitute the point at which revolutionary theory and practice most directly intersect. The wide latitude of mutual tolerance and coexistence, characteristic of differences that remain in the realm of theory, constricts when questions of organization become the focus of attention. Because principles of organization mediate between theory and practice, organizational disputes ineluctably propel theoretical divergences into their most acutely conflicting, antinomic forms. The collapse of the First International provides an exceptionally clear example of this phenomenon. Theoretical differences coexisted with relative tranquillity for years within the International, but "as soon as these same theoretical divergences came to be applied to questions of organization, unity was definitively shattered."² The viability of the essentially heterogeneous First International rested upon its loosely organized federalist structure. Marx's attempt to impose a tighter, centralized structure upon it, provoked a fundamental ideological confrontation within the International, and precipitated its collapse, while the means he utilized established a precedent for the increasing rigidity of the Second and Third Internationals.

Both the Bo potential of or theory and pr war. Explosiv social democ composition divergences be incompatibili two at their 19
the CGT and into sharp rel of internation

Within the the war, the a inevitably bro itating the co communists. I in the backg community o Bolsheviks to predominant the Bolshevik position. The for reformism standing ind inescapably a early forms a calists to dec ganizations fo remained nea the role of t evolving, as t victory, while lution that th

The succes prompted th revolutionary tionary succe of a resurger of the commu
a strategy. T

Both the Bolsheviks and the syndicalists later experienced the divisive potential of organizational issues as the point of interpenetration between theory and practice within their own respective spheres prior to the war. Explosive organizational issues destroyed the unity of the Russian social democratic movement, when differences regarding the nature and composition of the party revealed previously coexisting theoretical divergences between Mensheviks and Bolsheviks to be incompatible. This incompatibility was demonstrated by the irrevocable breach between the two at their 1903 party congress. On the other hand, differences between the CGT and most foreign syndicalist union associations were thrown into sharp relief by a discussion of organization, this time on the level of international revolutionary unionism, in the controversy of 1913.

Within the larger arena of revolutionary internationalism following the war, the attempt to translate ideology into an international strategy inevitably brought to the fore those questions of organization precipitating the conflict, and subsequent breach, between syndicalists and communists. Initially, however, organizational considerations remained in the background. Circumstances appeared to have created a new community of interests and values, to have drawn syndicalists and Bolsheviks together, following the outbreak of war in August 1914. The predominant syndicalist response had been sharply to oppose the war; the Bolsheviks, almost alone among social democrats, adopted the same position. The Bolsheviks' new condemnation of their erstwhile allies, for reformism and betrayal, echoed the syndicalists' much longer-standing indictment of the social democratic leadership. Later, the inescapably appealing character of the Russian Revolution, with whose early forms and slogans they could readily identify, compelled syndicalists to declare solidarity with it. It prompted some syndicalist organizations formally to align themselves with the CI, whose first congress remained nearly mute on questions of trade union organization and the role of the communist party. Bolshevik strategy was itself still evolving, as the communists sought to defend and consolidate their own victory, while anticipating the rapid spread of the international revolution that they deemed necessary to sustaining that in Russia.

The success of their own revolution and the failure of those elsewhere prompted the Bolsheviks to give greater attention to international revolutionary strategy as protracted struggle. Recognition that revolutionary success beyond Russian borders would be difficult in the face of a resurgent capitalism, reinforced the idea of the preeminent role of the communist party, already embedded in Bolshevik theory, in such a strategy. The organizational corollaries of Bolshevik theory - the permeation of reformist unions, the organic connection between unions and communist parties, and, on the international level, the subordination of the RILU to the CI – inevitably elicited resistance from those syndicalists who had not acquiesced to communist leadership under the spell of the Russian Revolution. Once the emphasis on organizational questions had underscored ideological conflicts, syndicalist resistance steadily mounted. Though noticeably pervaded by the enthusiasm that many of its participants felt for Moscow, the syndicalist conference of 1920 nevertheless stipulated the minimal syndicalist conditions for a revolutionary labour International, and rejected the exercise of working class dictatorship by a political party. The June conference of 1922, following the syndicalist disillusionment with the founding RILU congress in which organizational issues predominated, went further. Its wider and more categorical repudiation of the policies of the RILU constituted the decisive breach between syndicalists and communists on the international level. Communist efforts to overcome this breach, by making merely formal and insubstantial changes in the organizational relationship between the RILU and the CI, were only partially successful. Syndicalist disaffection with Moscow culminated in the foundation of the IWMA at the end of 1922.

The repression of libertarian tendencies within the Russian labour movement paralleled and reinforced the ideological divergence which was disclosed by the polemic on questions of organization, itself first and most forcefully expressed in Russia. A variety of converging motives in addition to the simple dictates of doctrine – the need to centralize the defense of a revolution under attack, the need to revive and strengthen a besieged economy by imposing discipline upon a working class in spontaneous rebellion against the constraints of production, the need to break the challenge to party bureaucracy from an internal 'Workers Opposition' – prompted the Bolshevik leadership to suppress all libertarian dissent within and without the communist party. But while the domestic syndicalists thus appeared as a disruptive threat, foreign syndicalists appeared as potential allies in the promotion of revolution against western capitalism. For the Bolsheviks the apparent incongruity of suppressing the syndicalists of Russia, while appealing to those of the West for unity of action, dissolved in a matrix of revolutionary expediency. If for some western syndicalists the identification with the Bolsheviks was so complete as to anaesthetize the conscience in these matters, for many others, who received not only the appeals but the expelled representatives of their Russian brethren, such unity of action could only constitute a breach of revolutionary morality. While they could point to which appeared opportunism saw the support veritable proof syndicalists staunch advocates independent

Despite the syndicalists and parties of the strains of a consequently them vulnerable to the western attack on the – an attack The Bolshevik of political fashioning p which had su to break the the revolution their organi conditions o the socialist p could be ach led to a serie had been tor communists

The breac well over a perception o unity. While bluntly as po to construct with a firm union move of the syndi of plans to e many syndi could point to instances in the West, in Germany, Italy and elsewhere, which appeared to demonstrate that nothing more than communist opportunism lay beneath Moscow's promotion of the united front, they saw the suppression of the Russian libertarian movement as incontrovertible proof of the spuriousness of such rhetoric. The deported Russian syndicalists themselves, moreover, were naturally among the most staunch advocates of establishing a revolutionary International wholly independent of Moscow.

Despite the vast ideological gulf separating them, the breach between syndicalists and communists came later than that which divided the parties of the left in the West into socialist and communist rivals. The strains of a prolonged war had accentuated pre-war tensions and consequently the prospects of schisms within the socialist parties, leaving them vulnerable to the attacks of the newly-created CI. Already opposed to the western parties, the syndicalists could readily approve Moscow's attack on the socialist leaders of the West as traitors and opportunists - an attack that only seemed to second their own earlier accusations. The Bolsheviks, moreover, initially directed their attention to the domain of political parties. Convinced of the crucial strategic necessity of fashioning purified communist parties elsewhere, comparable to that which had successfully seized power in Russia, the Bolsheviks first acted to break the claims of the communist youth organizations to constitute the revolutionary vanguard. Next and more importantly, they imposed their organizational demands, codified above all in the twenty-one conditions of admission to the CI adopted in the summer of 1920, upon the socialist parties of the West. Once it became clear that no compromise could be achieved, the internal struggles within socialist parties rapidly led to a series of schisms. By early 1921 the leading parties of Europe had been torn asunder, and a permanent rivalry between socialists and communists had emerged.

The breach between the syndicalists and Moscow did not come for well over a year. Political schismatics par excellence, the Bolsheviks' perception of strategic needs made them great advocates of trade union unity. While they advanced their demands of party organization as bluntly as possible in the summer of 1920, they simultaneously undertook to construct an international labour organization to provide Moscow with a firm footing within the widest possible compass of the trade union movement. They hoped to harness the revolutionary potential of the syndicalist movement by the same means. The announcement of plans to establish a revolutionary trade union International enabled many syndicalists to transfer a persistent enthusiasm for Moscow from the CI to the emergent RILU. Despite the exclusively political character given the CI by its second congress, Moscow remained the cynosure of the syndicalists, who had sought the establishment of a revolutionary labour International since 1913. Their hopes of sharing in the work of the Russian Revolution on an international level, while preserving their own autonomy, were dashed only by the RILU congress of 1921. Then the imposition of Moscow's organizational demands upon the revolutionary trade union movement revealed compromise between communists and syndicalists, in an international trade union organization, to be no more attainable than compromise between communists and socialists in workers' parties in the West. The international consolidation of syndicalist resistance to Moscow took another year, not least because syndicalist unions were frequently beleaguered by hostile governments in the West and often internally disrupted by communist noyautage, or cell-building. But the June conference of 1922 formalized the categorical rejection of Moscow by the syndicalists, who by then viewed the Russian experience as the leading example of a failed revolution.

Delayed by the syndicalists' prolonged flirtation with Moscow, the timing of the foundation of the IWMA proved propitious neither for the wider workers' movement, nor for the syndicalist movement tout court. By formally splitting its revolutionary forces, the breach between syndicalists and communists further fragmented an international labour movement, whose potential resistance to an emerging mass movement of extremism on the right had already been undermined by the division between moderates and radicals. And if the IWMA finally provided a sanctuary for those union organizations that could accept neither the reformism of the IFTU nor the Bolshevized RILU, its formation at the end of 1922 came at a less than optimal time for the syndicalist movement itself. The disruptions and hardships of war and the example of a workers' revolution in Russia had helped to radicalize workers, and by 1919 had prompted a rapid expansion of organized labour. Syndicalist unions, thanks to their revolutionary ethos, were disproportionate beneficiaries of this influx into the trade unions. Correspondingly, the subsequent exodus in the period of post-war disillusionment frequently hit the syndicalist unions harder than others. The tide of revolutionary sentiment had ebbed well before the end of 1922, when the IWMA was founded. By then the membership of most syndicalist union associations had crested and receded.

The infant IWMA, moreover, confronted a post-war world in which capitalist rationalization had attained unprecedented dimensions, which harboured not only socialist but already well-established communist rivals, and in which the workers' movement had paved the way for a new order, crushed by an authoritarianism elsewhere – soon fell victim to the same forces in the West. Leninism, and its forms of organization, control, and verticality, in industrial mechanization, was unable to establish a new order. Syndicalists found themselves precisely marked for wider resonance by the working class.

Despite its relative isolation, the post-war socialist movement was durable. Harassed by the state, dependent solely upon the workers' movement, it earned its reputation as an authoritarian movement. It is by conception a movement. And although syndicalism was their reformist core, the IWMA with a strong sense of that of any purely revolutionary movement provided a vehicle for sustaining the movement for sustaining the producer in a free society.

Relegated to a position of marginality, the IFTU and to the left, and critic, defended the capitalist system, and the capitalist system, and it has been suggested that, in this period, this observation, when the force on the left, the flesh of communism, and strictures against the perceptive and p rivals, and in which new socio-economic forces unleashed by the war had paved the way for the emergence of an aggressive fascism. Already crushed by an authoritarian government in Russia, syndicalist organizations elsewhere – in Spain and Italy, in Portugal and South America – soon fell victim to the international reaction already well under way in the West. Left to demonstrate, moreover, that its means of struggle and forms of organization could preserve a foundation for local workers' control, and yet prove viable within an environment of expanding industrial mechanization, rationalization and centralization, the IWMA was unable to expand. Within the radical labour movement the syndicalists found themselves outflanked by the communists, who emphasized precisely mass organization, and whose goal of state socialism found wider resonance within an increasingly industrialized and centralized working class.

Despite its relative ineffectiveness, the IWMA, the smallest of the three post-war socialist labour Internationals, nevertheless proved remarkably durable. Harassed and beleaguered, indebted to no government, dependent solely upon the material and human resources of the libertarian workers' movement, the IWMA embarked at the end of 1922 on a career that earned it the distinction of being the longest-lived of all anti-authoritarian Internationals. Its durability is attributable to the fact that it is by conception and practice anchored in the trade union movement. And although syndicalist unions have not always proved as stable as their reformist counterparts, they nevertheless collectively provided the IWMA with a structural foundation more resilient and abiding than that of any purely anarchist International. The formation of the IWMA provided a vehicle and a voice within the international workers' movement for sustaining, however tenuously, the syndicalist vision of a free producer in a free society.

Relegated to a minority position, implacably opposed both to the IFTU and to the RILU, the IWMA took up the role of propagandist and critic, defending its own views and offering a critical analysis of the capitalist system, party politics, bourgeois democracy, the parliamentary system, and the Marxist alternative. "Syndicalism is most effective," it has been suggested, "in its critique."³ Though said of the pre-1914 period, this observation is at least equally applicable to the post-war period, when the syndicalists found themselves confronted by a new force on the left, the communists. The IWMA remained "a thorn in the flesh of communism and of the R.I.L.U."⁴ In their estimation of and strictures against the communist movement, the syndicalists proved perceptive and prescient, although the fact that they came to witness so much of what they had warned against provided scant consolation.

Long highly attuned to the bureaucratic and oligarchic tendencies of political organizations, including purportedly proletarian parties, the syndicalists came to see the emergence of Bolshevism as irrefutable proof of the fatal dangers inherent in such organization. They had earlier perceived the steady diminution of the revolutionary commitment of pre-war social democratic parties as the inevitable accompaniment of the proliferation of political offices and party posts, and of an increasing preoccupation with electoral-parliamentary exigencies. They therefore argued that the "new revolutionary parliamentarism" espoused by the CI constituted no safeguard against the bureaucratization and domestication of communist parties operating within a framework of capitalist parliamentarism. The evolution of western communist parties largely sustained this judgment. They saw Bolshevism in Russia as confirming that the seizure and utilization of state power by a revolutionary party led not to the emancipation of labour, but to the extension of a new bureaucratic mechanism of command and the installation of a new privileged elite, a new ruling oligarchy.

The syndicalists represented a tradition more deeply committed than any in the organized workers' movement to the right of the producing masses to self-administration and their capacity for it. They predicted that efforts to implement state socialism would mean a mere substitution of masters for the workers, an alternative form of oppression leaving them as distant as before from the ideal of genuine workers' control and administration. They witnessed the Lenin who had celebrated workers' control in State and Revolution, and who had seen the chief task of the proletarian revolution as "the establishment on a country-wide scale of the most precise and most conscientious accounting and control, of workers' control of the production and distribution of goods,"⁵ subordinate every impulse towards workers' control to the hegemony of the party. Lenin now advocated the introduction of a state-sponsored Taylor system in Russia.⁶ Lenin now insisted that "large-scale machine industry - . . . the foundation of socialism - calls for absolute and strict unity of will, which directs the joint labours of hundreds, thousands and tens of thousands of people. . . . But how can strict unity of will be ensured? By thousands subordinating their will to the will of one. . . . Unquestioning subordination to a single will is absolutely necessary."⁷ Lenin now declared it "absolutely essential that all authority in the factories should be concentrated in the hands of the management," and he denounced "all direct interference by trade unions in the management of factories . . . as positively harmful and impermissible."⁸

Many syndi
whether capi predictable centralized later contrib of labour in the syndical of the intern and circum ensured that little more t prediction. If

The syndi judgment th ciples of the cipation of l through the the law of th communists authority as to rationalize by sacrificing self-perpetua scientists to s that "the ide institutional than the rev communist a from ideology

In the face the syndicalis of organizatio
the end of wo by a purporte in ensconcing that the syndi from the imp democracy th that the work but never saw must be led

Many syndicalists, who had long opposed industrial authoritarianism, whether capitalist or state socialist, found Lenin's reversal natural and predictable; nor were they surprised when the hierarchical structure and centralized authority early enacted within the Soviet economic system later contributed to the imposition of an even greater regimentation of labour in Russia. Within the formal arena of labour internationalism, the syndicalists were perhaps the first to warn that, despite all the rhetoric of the international revolutionary commitment of class, the structure and circumstances of the new Communist International in Moscow ensured that it and its various appendages would soon be reduced to little more than foreign policy tools of the Soviet government. This prediction, like so many others, was all too quickly fulfilled.

The syndicalists of the IWMA believed that events substantiated their judgment that the very assumptions, methods and organizational principles of the communists ordained the betrayal of the promised emancipation of labour. They expected that the Bolshevik "party leadership, through the progressive canonization of bureaucratic expedients into the law of the revolution," would depart from the spirit of 1917.⁹ The communists could mock the syndicalists' refusal to embrace political authority as the inescapable concomitant of liberty, but they were left to rationalize the fact that they ended, as the syndicalist said they would, by sacrificing liberty at the altar of an unprecedented, all-encompassing, self-perpetuating authority. Long before it became customary for social scientists to say so, the syndicalists had already regarded it as evident that "the ideology of modern authoritarianism is derived from the institutional and political arrangements of these political systems rather than the reverse;" that the raison d'être "of authoritarian rule in the communist and fascist model derived more from political power than from ideology."¹⁰

In the face of the perennial problem of the organization of liberty, the syndicalists apotheosized liberty, while the communists made a fetish of organization. Neither realized their ultimate goals. To the communists the end of workers' liberation justified the means, the seizure of power by a purportedly proletarian party. But while the communists succeeded in ensconcing themselves in those congenial corridors of political power that the syndicalists deplored and renounced, they grew ever more distant from the implementation of the workers' control and radical workers' democracy they espoused as their objective. The syndicalists insisted that the workers could and must be educated to liberate themselves, but never saw them liberated; the communists insisted that the workers must be led to liberation, and unwittingly led them into increasing regimentation and dependence, into a form of industrial serfdom. Not by mere coincidence was the most powerful and dramatic series of recent general strikes – that of Poland's Solidarity movement – directed against an ostensibly emancipatory and tutelary communist party and state. The greater practical success of its socialist and communist rivals does not still the voice of syndicalism. However unrealistic the general strike may appear in an increasingly and defiantly complex and pluralistic world, however simplistic and utopian the vision of a decentralized socialized community based upon trade unions, syndicalism is not simply irrelevant. It has its own questions to pose, its own contributions to make to our understanding of the nature of class and class relationships, of the character of power and authority within the political and economic systems, of the nature and role of the state, of the oligarchical and bureaucratic tendencies of human associations, including trade unions, of centralization and decentralization in political and economic life, of the purpose of labour organizations and the role of labour in modern society. The inability of syndicalism to realize its larger vision invalidates neither its questions nor its contributions. As an international phenomenon itself, as well as in its adversarial exchanges with the political socialists, syndicalism cannot be ignored by those who seek to understand the pursuit of freedom in the past, or those who ponder the elusive structure of liberty, or those who would chart a course between ideals that defy practice and practices that nullify ideals.

Preface

1. James (1980), p. 1.
2. Since the war, the immense Geschichte der Arbeiterbewegung on a century and not only see James Routledge, the war 3. internationale des, 1926. On the p. Labour Movement a-Half In L'Action Études Internationales inique De Forming Günther Carter, 19 Internationale
3. Joll, p. 1.
4. See P. "logie," Pe (Darmstadt).

Chapter

1. Only here, Doc ed., La P Internation in it, Jam Société N Cole, A F and Anav
2. What be conqu The Firs 84, For an Internation and the I Karl Mar 1980), ch. 3. By 1 peacefull First Inte
4. Jam 1943) (Pa
5. Prou "one and the abolit to Pierre

APPENDICES

APPENDIX A

THE CHARTER OF AMIENS

Endorsed by the CGT (830 votes to 8) at its 1906 congress. Reproduced in Henri Dubief ed., Le Syndicalisme révolutionnaire (Paris: Armand Colin, 1969), pp. 95-6.

The Confederal Congress of Amiens reconfirms article 2 of the CGT constitution. The CGT unites, outside all political schools, all workers conscious of the struggle to be conducted for the disappearance of the wage-earning and employing classes . . . ;

The Congress considers this declaration to be a recognition of the class struggle which, on the economic plane, puts the workers in revolt against all forms of exploitation and oppression, material as well as moral, exercised by the capitalist against the working class;

The Congress clarifies this theoretical affirmation by the following points:

In its day-to-day demands, syndicalism seeks the coordination of workers' efforts, the increase of workers' well-being by the achievement of immediate improvements, such as the reduction of working hours, the increase of wages, etc.;

But this task is only one aspect of the work of syndicalism; it prepares for complete emancipation, which can be realized only by expropriating the capitalist class; it sanctions the general strike as its means of action and it maintains that the trade union, today an organization of resistance, will in the future be the organization of production and distribution, the basis of social reorganization. The Congress declares that this double task, the day-to-day and the future task, derives from the position of wage-earners, which weighs upon the working class and which charges all workers, whatever their political and philosophical opinions and inclinations, with the duty to belong to the essential organization, the trade union;

The Congress consequently affirms, regarding individuals, the complete liberty of the unionist to participate, outside his union, in whatsoever forms of struggle conform to his political or philosophical views, and limits itself to requesting that he, in exchange, not introduce into his union the opinions he holds outside it.

The Congress resolves, regarding organizations, that since economic action must be conducted directly against the employers for syndicalism to achieve its maximum effect, affiliated organizations insofar as they are trade unions should not concern themselves with the parties and sects which, outside and alongside the unions, may in complete liberty pursue social transformation.

APPENDIX B

THE LONDON DECLARATION

Accepted unanimously by the international syndicalist congress in London in 1913. Reproduced in the Syndicalist and Amalgamation News, October 1913.

That this Congress, recognising that the working class of every country suffers from capitalist slavery and State oppression, declares for the class struggle and international solidarity, and for the organisation of the workers into autonomous industrial Unions on a basis of free association. Strives for the immediate uplifting of the material and intellectual interests of the working class, and for the overthrow of the capitalist system and the State. Declares that the class struggle is a necessary result of private property in the means of production and distribution, and therefore declares for the socialisation of such property by constructing and developing our Trade Unions in such a way as to fit them for the administration of these means in the interest of the entire community.

Recognises that, internationally, Trade Unions will only succeed when they cease to be divided by political and religious differences; declares that their fight is an economic fight, meaning thereby that they do not intend to reach their aim by trusting their cause to governing bodies or their members, but by using Direct Action, by workers themselves relying on the strength of their economic organisations.

And in consequence of these recognitions and declarations, the Congress appeals to the workers of all countries to organise in autonomous industrial unions, and to unite themselves on the basis of international solidarity, in order finally to obtain their emancipation from capitalism and the State.

Adopted by the Der Syndikalist

1. The R out reserv and the po

2. The and intelle establishm

3. The intellectua cation of direct rev can its goa

4. The regulation organizati

5. The political p parties or versa, ther these parti

6. This and revolu convened on 1 May Internatio

APPENDIX C

THE BERLIN DECLARATION

Adopted by the Berlin conference of December 1920. Reproduced in Der Syndikalist, no. 51/52 (1920).

1. The Revolutionary Trade Union International [RTUI] adopts without reservation the point of view of the revolutionary class struggle and the power of the working class.

2. The RTUI strives for the destruction of the economic, political and intellectual regime of capitalism and of the state. It strives for the establishment of a free communist society.

3. The working class is able to destroy the economic, political and intellectual slavery of capitalism only through the most severe application of its economic means of power, which finds expression in the direct revolutionary action of the working class. Only by this means can its goal be attained.

4. The RTUI further adopts the view that the arrangement and regulation of production and distribution is the duty of the trade union organizations of each land.

5. The RTUI is completely autonomous and independent of every political party. If the RTUI undertakes an action with which political parties or other organizations declare themselves in agreement, or vice-versa, then the execution of this action can be carried out jointly with these parties or organizations.

6. This conference urgently summons all revolutionary syndicalist and revolutionary industrialist organizations to take part in the congress convened by the Provisional Council of the RILU, to meet at Moscow on 1 May, and to found there a united revolutionary trade union International of all the revolutionary workers of the world.

APPENDIX D

DECLARATION OF THE PRINCIPLES OF REVOLUTIONARY SYNDICALISM

Accepted by the founding congress of the IWMA, and earlier by the Berlin conference of June 1922. Reproduced in Resolutionen des Internationalen Kongresses der revolutionären Syndikalisten zu Berlin vom 25. Dezember 1922 bis 2. Januar 1923 (N.p. [Berlin]: Internationalen Arbeiter-Assoziation, n.d. [1923]), pp. 10-3.

1. Revolutionary syndicalism is that movement of the working classes founded on the basis of class war, which strives for the union of manual and intellectual workers in economic fighting organizations, in order to prepare for and realize in practice their liberation from the yoke of wage-slavery and state oppression. Its goal is the reorganization of the whole of social life on the basis of free communism through the collective revolutionary action of the working classes themselves. It takes the view that only the economic organizations of the proletariat are appropriate for the realization of this task and turns therefore to the workers in their capacity as producers and generators of social value, in opposition to the modern political labour parties, which for constructive economic purpose do not come into consideration.

2. Revolutionary syndicalism is the unqualified opponent of all economic and social monopolies, and strives for their elimination by means of economic communes and administrative organs of industrial and field workers on the basis of a free council system, which is subordinate to no political power or party. Against the politics of states and parties it sets the economic organization of labour; against the government of men, the administration of things. For this reason it does not aspire to the conquest of political power, but the elimination of every state function from the life of society. It is of the opinion that together with the monopoly of property, the monopoly of power must also vanish, and that the state in every form, even in the form of the so-called 'Dictatorship of the Proletariat', can never be an instrument for the liberation of labour, but always only the creator of new monopolies and new privileges.

3. The task of revolutionary syndicalism is to conduct the economic and moral liberation of the working classes on the basis of their independence and autonomy over of all social and economic life. It cannot be realized only by an all-round branch of production, but by every independent industry in the form of economic operations. It is a social organization that aims at the distribution of the products of the general

4. Revolutionary syndicalism opposes the church, and the individualism of the bourgeoisie, which is based on the down, which is based on the to a few individuals, and is guided and controlled by them. It must quit the idea of uniformity, and of training. For the sake of federalism, it is based on the bottom up, and on the basis of mutual interest.

5. Revolutionary syndicalism opposes all collaboration with the bourgeoisie, and the franchise system, and the entire parliamentary system of legality, and the slaves to the bourgeoisie.

6. Revolutionary syndicalism opposes the nation and the nation-state.

REVOLUTIONARY

and earlier by the Resolutionen des Internationalen zu Berlin vom Internationalen

the working classes
the union of manual organizations, in order from the yoke reorganization of nism through the hemselves. It takes the proletariat are therefore to the
of social value,
es, which for con-nation.

opponent of all the elimination by means of industrial system, which is the politics of states
bour: against the
For this reason it at the elimination of the opinion that of power must in the form of the
be an instrument
the creator of new

3. The task of revolutionary syndicalism is two-fold: on the one hand, it conducts the daily revolutionary struggle for the economic, intellectual and moral improvement of the workers within the present social order; on the other, its principal goal is to prepare the masses for the independent administration of production and for the division and take-over of all sections of social life. It is its conviction that the organization of an economic order, which is founded in its entirety upon the producers, cannot be regulated by government resolutions and state decrees, but only by an alliance of all manual and intellectual workers in each separate branch of production, through the assumption of the administration of every individual operation by the producers themselves, specifically in the form that the individual groups, workshops and production operations, are autonomous members of the universal economic organization that methodically shapes the whole of production and general distribution on the basis of reciprocal agreements and in the interests of the general public.

4. Revolutionary syndicalism is the adversary of all centralist endeavours and organizations, which are borrowed from the state and the church, and which systematically stifle independent initiative and individual thought. Centralism is the artificial organization from the top down, which transfers as a whole the regulation of the affairs of all to a few individuals. By this means the individual becomes a puppet guided and controlled from above. The interests of the general public must quit the field for the benefit of a few individuals, variety for uniformity, personal responsibility for lifeless discipline, education for training. For this reason revolutionary syndicalism stands upon the basis of federalist union, that is, upon an organization structured from the bottom up, of the voluntary federation of all forces on the foundation of mutual interests and common convictions.

5. Revolutionary syndicalism repudiates all parliamentary activity and all collaboration in legislative bodies. Not even the widest possible franchise can temper the gaping contradictions in modern society; the entire parliamentary system has as its sole purpose to lend the appearance of legality to the rule of the lie and of social injustice, and to induce the slaves to imprint the seal of the law upon their own slavery.

6. Revolutionary syndicalism rejects all arbitrarily drawn political and national boundaries and sees in nationalism only the religion of modern states, behind which hide the interests of the propertied classes. It recognizes only natural regional differences and demands for every minority the right to be able to regulate its own affairs in joint agreement with all other economic, regional, or national associations.

7. On the same grounds revolutionary syndicalism opposes militarism in every form and considers anti-militarist propaganda to be one of its most important tasks in the struggle against the existing system. Pertaining to that end are above all the refusal of the individual to participate in [the military service of] the state, and especially the organized refusal by workers to produce military equipment.

8. Revolutionary syndicalism stands upon the basis of direct action and supports all struggles of the people which are not in conflict with its goal of the abolition of economic monopolies and the despotism of the state. It recognizes the strike, boycott, sabotage, and so on, as its weapons. Direct action finds its highest expression in the social general strike, which syndicalists see simultaneously as the prelude to the social revolution.

9. Although syndicalists are the enemies of all organized violence in the hands of any revolutionary government, they do not fail to recognize that the decisive struggle between the capitalist present and free communist future will not occur without conflict. They accordingly recognize violence as a means of defense against the violent methods of the ruling classes in the struggle for the possession of the factories and the fields by the revolutionary people. Just as the expropriation of the factories and the land must in practice be effected and directed on the path of social reorganization by the revolutionary economic organizations of the workers, so also must the defense of the revolution be entrusted to the masses themselves and their economic organizations, and not left to a specific military organization, or any other organization, that stands outside the economic associations.

10. Only in the revolutionary economic organizations of the working class lies the means for its liberation, and the creative energy for the reconstruction of society in the direction of free communism.

Note: The and exclu

1. Archiv

France

The Net

Sweden

United P

United S

SELECT BIBLIOGRAPHY

Note: The bibliography lists only those sources cited in the text and notes, and excludes non-labour newspapers and journals.

A. Archival and Manuscript Sources

1. Archives

- | | |
|-----------------|---|
| France | Institut français d'histoire sociale , Paris

1. Pierre Monatte Archives |
| The Netherlands | Internationaal Instituut voor Sociale Geschiedenis , Amsterdam

1. Alexander Berkman Archives
2. Ugo Fedeli Archives
3. Emma Goldman Archives
4. International Working Men's Association (AIT-IAA) Archives
5. Albert de Jong Archives
6. Nationaal Arbeids-Secretariaat Archives
7. Max Nettlau Archives
8. Rudolf Rocker Archives |
| Sweden | Arbetarrörelsens Arkiv , Stockholm

1. Albert Jensen Archives
2. Sveriges Arbetares Centralorganisation Archives. Serie EXIII, "Korrespondens med Internationale Arbeiter-Assoziation," I 1918-1930 |
| United Kingdom | Nuffield College , Oxford University, Oxford

1. Jack Tanner Papers |
| United States | Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace , Stanford University, Stanford

1. Joaquin Maurin Archives

Labadie Collection , University of Michigan, Ann Arbor

1. Mark Mratchnyi Archives

Walter P. Reuther Library , Wayne State University, Detroit

1. Industrial Workers of the World Archives |

2. Manuscripts

- Berkman, Alexander. "Diary: Russia 1919-1921." Berkman Archives.
 Cornelissen, Christiaan. "Strijd, lief en leed in de oude socialistische beweging en de vakorganisaties: persoonlijke herinneringen door Christiaan Cornelissen." Internationaal Instituut voor Sociale Geschiedenis, Amsterdam.
 Jensen, Albert. "Memoarfragment." Jensen Archives.
 Kloosterman, Jaap. "Materiales sobre Alexandre Shapiro." Jaap Kloosterman, Amsterdam.
 Nettlau, Max. 1895-1914, III B. Nettlau Archives.
 Rocker, Rudolf. "Memoiren III: Revolution und Rückfall in die Barberei." Rocker Archives.

B. Newspapers and Periodicals of the Workers' Movement

1. International:

- Bulletin de l'Internationale Anarchiste* (London)
Bulletin du Premier Congrès International des Syndicats Révolutionnaires (Moscow)
Bulletin du III Congrès de l'Internationale Communiste (Moscow)
Bulletin International des Syndicalistes Révolutionnaires et Industrialistes (Berlin)
Bulletin International du Mouvement Syndicaliste (Paris, Amsterdam)
Bulletin of the Executive Committee of the Communist International (Moscow)
Bulletin of the Relief Fund of the International Working Men's Association for Anarchists and Anarcho-Syndicalists Imprisoned or Exiled in Russia (Berlin, Paris)
Communist International (Petrograd, Moscow)
La Correspondance Internationale (Berlin)
Die Internationale: eine Wochenschrift zur Praxis und Theorie der Marxismus (Berlin)
Die Internationale: Organ der Internationalen Arbeiter-Assoziation (Berlin)
Internationale: Organe de l'AIT (Paris)
Die Internationale: Zeitschrift für die revolutionäre Arbeiterbewegung, Gesellschaftskritik und Sozialistischen Neuaufbau (Berlin)
Die Internationale Gewerkschaftsbewegung: Organ der Internationalen Gewerkschaftsbundes (Amsterdam)
L'Internationale Syndicale Rouge: Bulletin du Bureau Executif (Moscow)
News Service Issued by the Secretariat of the IWMA (Berlin)
Presse-Dienst herausgegeben von dem Sekretariat der IAA (Berlin)
Die Rote Gewerkschafts-Internationale (Berlin)
Service de la Presse publié par le Secrétariat de l'AIT (Berlin)
Servicio de la Prensa publicado por el Secretariado de la AIT (Berlin)

2. Argentina

3. Austria

4. Belgium

5. Canada

6. Denmark

7. France

8. Germany

9. Italy

10. The Netherlands

2. Argentina: La Protesta (Buenos Aires)
3. Austria: Wohlstand für Alle (Vienna)
4. Belgium: L'Action Ouvrière (Liège)
5. Canada: Alberta Labor News (Edmonton)
British Columbia Federationist (Vancouver)
6. Denmark: Solidaritet (Copenhagen)
7. France: La Bataille (Paris)
La Bataille Syndicaliste (Paris)
Le Bulletin Communist (Paris)
La Clairière (Paris)
Le Combat Syndicaliste (Limoges)
España Libre (Toulouse)
La Guerre Sociale (Paris)
L'Humanité (Paris)
Le Journal du Peuple (Paris)
Le Libertaire (Paris)
La Lutte de Classe (Paris)
Le Peuple (Paris)
La Revue du Travail (Paris)
Les Temps Nouveaux (Paris)
Le Travailleur du Bâtiment (Paris)
La Vie Ouvrière (Paris)
La Voix du Peuple (Paris)
La Voix du Travail (Paris)
8. Germany: Correspondenzblatt der Generalkommission der Gewerkschaften Deutschlands (Berlin)
Die Einigkeit (Berlin)
Der Kommunistische Gewerkschaftler (Berlin)
Mitteilungsblatt [FVdG] (Berlin)
Der Pionier (Berlin)
Rabochii Put' (Berlin)
Der Rote Fahne (Berlin)
Rundschreiben an die Vorstände und Mitglieder aller der Freien Vereinigung deutscher Gewerkschaften angeschlossenene Vereine (Berlin)
Der Syndikalist (Berlin)
Vorwärts (Berlin)
9. Italy: Guerra di classe (Milan)
Internazionale (Verona)
L'Internazionale (Parma)
Il Soviet (Naples)
10. The Netherlands: De Arbeid (Amsterdam)
Grondslagen (Amsterdam)
De Nederlandsche Zeeman (Amsterdam)
De Syndicalist (Amsterdam)

- Het Volk* (Amsterdam)
11. Norway: Alarm (Oslo)
Direkte Aktion (Oslo)
Storm (Oslo)
12. Portugal: A Batalha (Lisbon)
13. Russia: Golos Truda (Petrograd, Moscow)
Trud i Volia (Moscow)
Vol'nyi Golos Truda (Moscow)
14. Spain: Lucha Social (Llerida)
Nueva Senda (Madrid)
Redencion (Alcoy)
La Revista Blanca (Madrid)
Solidaridad Obrera (Barcelona)
Tierra y Libertad (Barcelona)
15. Sweden: Arbetaren (Stockholm)
Brand (Malmö)
Syndikalismen (Stockholm)
Syndikalisten (Malmö)
16. Switzerland: La Voix du Peuple (Lausanne)
17. United Kingdom: Der Arbeter Frint (London)
Daily Herald (London)
Freedom (London)
Justice (London)
Labour Leader (London)
New Statesman (London)
Solidarity (London)
Syndicalist and Amalgamation News (London)
Worker (Glasgow)
18. United States: Industrial Solidarity (Chicago, Illinois)
Industrial Worker (Spokane, Washington)
Solidarity (Cleveland, Ohio; Chicago, Illinois)
Syndicalist (Chicago, Illinois)

C. Additional Sources

- Abad de Santillan, Diego. "La Asociacion Internacional de los Trabajadores: su historia, sus ideas, su porvenir." La Revista Internacional Anarquista 1 (15 January 1925):61-64; (15 February 1925):86-90; (15 March 1925):108-11; (15 April 1925):131-34.
- Adibekow, G.M. Die Rote Gewerkschafts-Internationale: Grundriss der Geschichte der RGI. Berlin: Tribune, 1973.
- Amdur, Kathryn E. Syndicalist Legacy: Trade Unions and Politics in Two French Cities in the Era of World War I. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press, 1986.

Andersson, Förlag.
Angress, V. German Anselmo, I. 2 vols.
bajador
Archives B.
Sociale Archives de des part dans les Arum, Pet Syndica
Arvidsson.
1977.
Asociacion
la Asoc 1930.
Associatio constitu de l'A.I.
Rivet. m
---. Statut Ouvrière Authier, D.
1921. P
Avrich, Pa
1967.
Baker, Ala of an I of Cali Bakunin.
1972.
---. Marx
1950.
Bar, Anto
anarco Belloni, A. argent Bergkvist.
lednin Förlag Berkman. and Li
---. The
---. The 1922.
---, et al
Der Sv Bertrand.
Interv (Decer

- Andersson, John. Med SAC i 40-årig kamp: en historik. Stockholm: Federativs Förlag, 1950.
- Angrss, Werner. Stillborn Revolution: The Communist Bid for Power in Germany 1921-1923. Princeton: Princeton University Press, 1967.
- Anselmo, Lorenzo. El Proletariado militante: Memorias de un Internacional. 2 vols. Vol. 1. Primer Periodo de la Asociacion Internacional de los Trabajadores en España. Barcelona: Libreria Española, n.d.
- Archives Bakounine*. 7 vols. Arthur Lehning, ed. Internationaal Instituut voor Sociale Geschiedenis. Leiden: E.-J. Brill, 1961-81.
- Archives de Jules Humbert-Droz*. 2 vols. Sigfried Bahne, ed. 1. Origines et débuts des partis communistes des pays latins (1919-1923). 2. Les partis communistes dans les années 1923-1927. Dordrecht: D. Reidel, 1970, 1983.
- Arum, Peter Marshall. "Georges Dumoulin: Biography of a Revolutionary Syndicalist, 1877-1923." Ph.D. dissertation, University of Wisconsin, 1971.
- Arvidsson, Evert, ed. Syndikalisterna Albert Jensen. Stockholm: Federativs Förlag, 1977.
- Asociacion Continental Americana de Trabajadores. Congreso constituyente de la Asociacion Continental Americana de Trabajadores. Buenos Aires: ACAT, 1930.
- Association Internationale des Travailleurs. Statuts adoptés par le Congrès constitutif de l'A.I.T. Berlin, décembre 1922. Modifiés par le IV Congrès de l'A.I.T., Madrid, 1931 et par le Ve Congrès de l'A.I.T., Paris, 1935. Limoges: Rivet, n.d.
- . Statuts de l'Association Internationale des Travailleurs. Courbevoit: Société Ouvrière d'Imprimerie, n.d.
- Authier, Denis and Barrot, Jean. La Gauche communiste en Allemagne 1918-1921. Paris: Payot, 1976.
- Avrich, Paul. The Russian Anarchists. Princeton: Princeton University Press, 1967.
- Baker, Alan S. "Fernand Pelloutier and the Bourses du Travail: The Creation of an Independent French Labor Movement." Ph.D. dissertation, University of California, 1973.
- Bakunin, Michael. Bakunin on Anarchy. Sam Dolgoff, ed. New York: Knopf, 1972.
- . Marxism, Freedom and the State. K.J. Kenafick, ed. London: Freedom Press, 1950.
- Bar, Antonio. La CNT en los años rojos (del sindicalismo revolucionario al anarcosindicalismo, 1910-1926). Madrid: Akal, 1981.
- Belloni, Alberto. Del anarquismo al peronismo: historia del movimiento obrero argentino. Buenos Aires: A. Peña Lillo, 1960.
- Bergkvist, Karl. Sveriges Arbetares Centralorganisation Minnesskrift med anledning av tjogofesårsjubileet utarbetad 1910-1935. Stockholm: Federativs Förlag, 1935.
- Berkman, Alexander. The Bolsheviki Myth (Diary 1920-1922). New York: Boni and Liveright, 1925.
- . The Kronstadt Rebellion. Berlin: Der Syndikalist, 1922.
- . The Russian Tragedy (A Review and an Outlook). Berlin: Der Syndikalist, 1922.
- , et al. Die russische Revolution und die kommunistische Partei. Berlin: Der Syndikalist, 1921.
- Bertrand, Charles L. "Italian Revolutionary Syndicalism and the Crisis of Intervention: August - December, 1914." Canadian Journal of History 10 (December 1975):349-67.

- . "Revolutionary Syndicalism in Italy, 1912-1922." Ph.D. dissertation, University of Wisconsin, 1969.
- Blänsdorf, Agnes. Die Zweite Internationale und der Krieg: Die Diskussion über die internationale Zusammenarbeit der sozialistischen Parteien, 1914-1917. Kieler Historische Studien, vol. 27. Stuttgart: Klett-Cotta, 1979.
- Bock, Hans Manfred. Syndikalismus und Linkskommunismus von 1918-1923: Zur Geschichte und Soziologie der Freien Arbeiter-Union Deutschlands (Syndikalistin), der Allgemeinen Arbeiter-Union Deutschlands und der Kommunistischen Arbeiter-Partei Deutschlands. Meisenheim: A. Hain, 1969.
- Bonnell, Victoria E. Roots of Rebellion: Workers' Politics and Organization in St. Petersburg and Moscow, 1900-1914. Berkeley, Los Angeles and London: University of California Press, 1983.
- Bookchin, Murray. The Spanish Anarchists: The Heroic Years, 1868-1936. New York: Harper, 1977.
- Borghi, Armando. L'Italia tra due Crispi: cause e conseguenze di una rivoluzione mancata. Paris: Edizioni della libreria internazionale, n.d. [1924?].
- . Mezzo secolo de anarchia (1898-1945). Naples: Edizioni scientifiche italiane, 1954.
- . Mussolini Red and Black. London: Lawrence and Wishart, 1935.
- . La rivoluzione mancata. Milan: Edizioni Azione Comune, n.d. [1964].
- Bouvier, Jean. "Mouvement ouvrier et conjonctures économiques." Le Mouvement Social, no. 48 (July-September 1964), pp. 3-30.
- Bouwman, E., Dissel, Th. J., and Kitz, C. Het congres der Roode Vak-Internationale te Moskou 1921: Rapport N.A.S. Delegation. Amsterdam: NAS, 1921.
- Bowditch, John. "The Concept of Elan Vital: A Rationalization of Weakness," in Modern France: Problems of the Third and Fourth Republics. Pp. 32-43. Edward Mead Earle, ed. Princeton: Princeton University Press, 1951.
- Brandt, F. Syndikalismus und Kommunismus. Berlin: Kommunistischer Partei Deutschlands (Spartakusbund) 1919.
- Braunthal, Julius. Geschichte der Internationale. 3 vols. Hannover: Dietz, 1961-1971.
- Brécy, Robert. La Grève générale en France. Paris: Etudes et Documentation Internationales, 1969.
- . Le Mouvement syndical en France, 1871-1921: essai bibliographique. Paris: Mouton, 1963.
- Brissenden, Paul. The I.W.W.: A Study of American Syndicalism. 2nd ed. Studies in History, Economics and Public Law, no. 193. New York: Columbia University, 1920.
- Brugmans, I. J. Paardenkracht en Mensenmacht: social-economische geschiedenis van Nederland, 1795-1940. 's-Gravenhage: Martinus Nijhoff, 1961.
- Buenacasa, Manuel. El movimiento obrero español, 1886-1926 (historia y critica). Paris: Familia y amigos del autor, 1966.
- Bueso, Adolfo. Como fundamos la C.N.T. Barcelona: Avance, 1976.
- . Recuerdos de un cenetista. 2 vols. 1. De la Semana Tragica (1909) a la Segunda Republica (1931). Barcelona: Ariel, 1976.
- Bull, Edvard. Arbeiderklassen i Norsk historie. Oslo: Tiden Norsk Forlag, 1947.
- Bultsma, Volkers and Tuin, Evert van der. Het Nederlandsch Syndicalistisch Vakverbond 1923-1940. Amsterdam: Anarchistiese Uitgaven, 1980.
- Bureau d'Information des Syndicalistes Révolutionnaires et Industriels. Bericht über die Internationale Syndikalistische Konferenz gehalten zu Berlin vom 16. bis 20. Dezember 1920. Amsterdam: NAS, n.d. [1921].

Burger.
social Butler, J.
Syndi
1960.
Calhoun
Camb Candel social Chamber no. 4
---, and archi Charles.
ouvri
Thom
Clark, M. and I
Clark, M. thesis
Cole, G.
Thom Collins.
Moz Comitat
Assoc Commun
ment
---. *Th
Petro
7th
---. *Th at M Brita Confede
Teat CNT Confédé
la C.
---. XI des septe n.d.
---. XI
25 a L'Un Confédé
l'ore Confédé
25 p Congrè
El Con Aire

- Burger, Jan Erik. Linkse frontvorming: samenwerking van revolutionaire socialisten, 1914-1918. Amsterdam: Van Gennep, 1983.
- Butler, James Charles. "Fernand Pelloutier and the Emergence of the French Syndicalist Movement, 1880-1906." Ph.D. dissertation, Ohio State University, 1960.
- Calhoun, Daniel F. The United Front: The TUC and the Russians, 1923-1928. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1976.
- Candeloro, Giorgio. Il movimento sindacale in Italia. Rome: Edizioni di cultura sociale, 1950.
- Chambelland, Colette. "Autour du 1er congrès de l'ISR." Le Mouvement Social, no. 48 (July-September 1964), pp. 31-44.
- , and Maitron, Jean, eds. Syndicalisme révolutionnaire et communisme: les archives de Pierre Monatte, 1914-1924. Paris: François Maspero, 1968.
- Charles, Jean. "Les Débuts de l'Internationale Syndicale Rouge et le mouvement ouvrier français (1920-1923)", part 1, Cahiers d'histoire de l'Institut Maurice Thorez, 12(1978), nos. 25-26, 161-99, part 2, 12(1978), no. 28, 125-64.
- Clark, Martin. Antonio Gramsci and the Revolution that Failed. New Haven and London: Yale University Press, 1977.
- Clark, Martin N. "Factory Councils and the Italian Labour Movement." Ph.D. thesis, University of London, 1966.
- Cole, G.D.H. Marxism and Anarchism, 1850-1890. Vol. 2, A History of Socialist Thought. London: Macmillan, 1954.
- Collins, Henry and Abramsky, Chimen. Karl Marx and the British Labour Movement: Years of the First International. London: Macmillan, 1965.
- Comitato Parmenese, ed. Un sindacalista mazziniano: Alceste de Ambris. Milan: Associazione mazziniana italiana, n.d.
- Communist International. The Communist International, 1919-1943: Documents. 3 vols. Jane Degras, ed. London: Oxford University Press, 1956.
- . The Second Congress of the Communist International: Proceedings of Petrograd Session of July 17th and of Moscow Sessions of July 19th-August 7th, 1920. Moscow: Communist International, 1920.
- . Third Congress of the Communist International: Report of Meetings held at Moscow June 22nd-July 12th, 1921. London: Communist Party of Great Britain, n.d.
- Confederacion Nacional del Trabajo. Memoria del Congreso celebrado en el Teatro de la Comedia de Madrid, los dias 10 al 18 Diciembre de 1919. Barcelona: CNT, 1932.
- Confédération Générale du Travail. XVIe Congrès national corporatif (Xe de la C.G.T.). Marseille: Imprimerie Nouvelle, 1909.
- . XVIIIe Congrès national corporatif (XIIe de la C.G.T.) et 5e conférence des bourses du travail ou unions de syndicats tenus au Havre de 16 au 23 septembre 1912: compte rendu des travaux. Le Havre: Imprimerie de l'Union, n.d.
- . XXIIe Congrès national corporatif (XVIe de la C.G.T.), tenu à Lille du 25 au 30 juillet 1921. Compte rendu des travaux. Villeneuve-Saint-Georges: L'Union Typographique, n.d.
- Confédération Générale du Travail Syndicaliste Révolutionnaire. Les Buts et l'organisation du syndicalisme révolutionnaire. Limoges: CGTSR, n.d.
- Confédération Générale du Travail Unitaire. Congrès tenu à St. Etienne du 25 juin au 1er juillet 1922. Paris: Maison des Syndicats, n.d.
- Congrès anarchiste tenu à Amsterdam, août 1907*. Paris: M. Delesalle, 1908.
- El Congreso revolucionario internacional de Paris. Septiembre de 1900*. Buenos Aires: Libreria Sociologica, 1902.

- Conlin, Joseph R. Big Bill Haywood and the Radical Union Movement. Syracuse, New York: Syracuse University Press, 1969.
- Conseil International des Syndicats Rouges. Compte-rendu du Conseil International des Syndicats Rouges pour la période de 15 juillet - à 1-er juillet 1921. Moscow, 1921.
- Cornelissen, Christiaan. Les Conséquences Economiques d'une paix allemande. N.p.: n.p., n.d.
- . Les Dessous Economiques de la guerre: les appétits allemands et les devoirs de l'Europe occidentale. Paris and Nancy: Berger-Levrault, n.d. [1915].
- Cornell, Richard. Revolutionary Vanguard: The Early Years of the Communist Youth International. Toronto, Buffalo and New York: University of Toronto Press, 1982.
- Cuadrat, Xavier. Socialismo y anarquismo en Cataluña (1899-1911): los origines de la C.N.T. Madrid: Revista de Trabajo, 1976.
- D'Agostino, Anthony. Marxism and the Russian Anarchists. San Francisco: Germinal Press, 1977.
- Daniels, Robert Vincent. The Conscience of the Revolution: Communist Opposition in Soviet Russia. Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 1960.
- De Clementi, Andreina. Politica e società nel sindacalismo rivoluzionario 1900-1915. Rome: Bulzoni, 1983.
- Degras, Jane. "United Front Tactics in the Comintern, 1921-1925," in International Communism. Pp. 9-22. David Footman, ed. St. Anthony's Papers, no. 9. London: Chatto and Windus, 1960.
- DeLucia, Michael Sabatino. "The Remaking of French Syndicalism, 1911-1918: The Growth of the Reformist Philosophy." Ph.D. dissertation, Brown University, 1971.
- Desanti, Dominique. L'Internationale Communiste. Paris: Payot, 1970.
- Disch, M. Von den Weltkongressen in Moskau 1921: Tagebuchblätter. Hamburg: Albert Fr. Heil, n.d.
- Dissel, Th. J. and Lansink, B., Jr., Internationale verbandingen van het N.A.S.: Berlijn of Moskou? Amsterdam: NAS, 1923.
- Dolléans, Edouard. Histoire du mouvement ouvrier. 3rd ed. 2 vols. 1. 1830-1871. 2. 1871-1920. Paris: Armand Colin, 1948.
- Donneur, André. Histoire de l'Union des Partis Socialistes pour l'Action Internationale. Lausanne: Université de Genève, Institut Universitaire des Hautes Etudes Internationales, 1967.
- Dubief, Henri, ed. Le Syndicalisme révolutionnaire: textes choisis et présentés par Henri Dubief. Paris: Armand Colin, 1969.
- Eisner, Freya. Das Verhältnis der KPD zu den Gewerkschaften in der Weimarer Republik. Köln and Frankfurt am Main: Europäische Verlagsanstalt, 1979.
- Eliasberg, George. Der Ruhrkrieg von 1920. Bonn and Bad Godesberg: Neue Gesellschaft, 1974.
- Elorza, Antonio. "Prologue," in Angel Pestaña, Trayectoria sindicalista. Pp. 5-77. Madrid: Tebas, 1974.
- Encyclopedia of the Social Sciences*. S.v. "Syndicalism," by Lewis Lorwin. Vol. 14. Edwin R.A. Seligman, ed. New York: MacMillan, 1930.
- Erger, Johannes. Der Kapp-Lüttwitz-Putsch. Düsseldorf: Droste, 1967.
- Fedeli, Ugo. "Breve storia dell'Unione Sindacale Italiana." Volonta 10 (30 September 1957):645-54.
- , ed. Corso di storia del movimento operaio. Ivrea: Centro di sociologia della cooperazione, 1957.
- Fernstrom, Karl. Ungsocialismen: En kronika. Stockholm: Federativs Förlag, 1950.

Ferraton, H.
Armand
Fishman, W.
1975, Foner, Phil
4. The I Publish
Foster, W.
Publish Frachon, B.
Socialis Freymond, Univers Friedberg, n.d. [19
Gallacher, and Wis
---. The R
Garcia Ver
1. 1868-abril de Gaudeaux, Roman Georges, B.
Cinqua
Univers Gitelman, of the C Goldberg,
Ph.D. d Goldman, Press. W
---. Liha
---. My D
Gomez, C.
Madrid Goodstein, to Pola
Gradilone
Gras, Chr interna et scien l'Univ
---. "Men 1968, Guillaum Nouvel
Hansen, E
Revolu
Review
Hardy, G
Five Ce

- Ferraton, Hubert. Syndicalisme ouvrier et social-démocratie en Norvège. Paris: Armand Colin, 1960.
- Fishman, William J. East End Jewish Radicals, 1875-1914. London: Duckworth, 1975.
- Foner, Philip S. History of the Labor Movement in the United States. Vol. 4, The Industrial Workers of the World, 1905-1917. New York: International Publishers, 1965.
- Foster, William Z. History of the Three Internationals. New York: International Publishers, 1955.
- Frachon, Benoît. Pour la CGT: mémoires de lutte, 1902-1939. Paris: Editions Sociales, 1982.
- Freymond, Jacques, ed. La Première Internationale. 4 vols. Geneva: Institut Universitaire de Hautes Etudes Internationales, 1962-1971.
- Friedeberg, Raphael. Parlamentarismus und Generalstreik. Berlin: Die Einigkeit, n.d. [1904].
- Gallacher, William. Revolt on the Clyde: An Autobiography. London: Lawrence and Wishart, 1936.
- . The Rolling of the Thunder. London: Lawrence and Wishart, 1947.
- García Venero, Maximiano. Historia de las internacionales en España. 3 vols. 1. 1868-1914 (1956); 2. 1914-1936 (1957); 3. Del 18 de julio de 1936 al 1 de abril de 1939 (1957). Madrid: Ediciones del Movimiento.
- Gaudeaux, Jean. Six mois en russie bolcheviste: documents inédits. Paris: Romans Nouveaux, 1924.
- Georges, Bernard, Tintant, Denise, and Renauld, Marie-Anne. Léon Jouhaux: Cinquante ans de syndicalisme. 2 vols. 1. Des origines à 1921. Paris: Presses Universitaires de France, 1962.
- Gitelman, Zvi Y. Jewish Nationality and Soviet Politics: The Jewish Sections of the CPSU, 1917-1930. Princeton: Princeton University Press, 1972.
- Goldberg, Harold. "The Anarchists View the Bolshevik Regime, 1918-1922." Ph.D. dissertation, University of Wisconsin, 1973.
- Goldman, Emma. The Crushing of the Russian Revolution. London: Freedom Press, 1922.
- . Living My Life, 2 Vols. New York: Knopf, 1931.
- . My Disillusionment in Russia. London: C.W. Daniel, 1925.
- Gomez Casas, Juan. Historia de anarco-sindicalismo español. Santiago and Madrid: ZYX, 1968.
- Goodstein, Phil H. The Theory of the General Strike from the French Revolution to Poland. Boulder, Colorado: East European Monographs, 1984.
- Gradilone, Alfredo. Storia del sindacalismo. Vol. 3. Italia, Milan: Giuffrè, 1959.
- Gras, Christian. Alfred Rosmer (1877-1964) et le mouvement révolutionnaire international. Thèse pour le Doctorat d'Etat présentée à la Faculté des lettres et sciences humaines de Paris (avril 1970) par Christian Gras, agrégé de l'Université. Paris: François Maspero, 1971.
- . "Merrheim et le capitalisme." Le Mouvement Social, no. 63 (April-June 1968), pp. 143-63.
- Guillaume, James. L'Internationale: documents et souvenirs. 4 vols. Paris: Société Nouvelle de Librairie et d'Edition and P.V. Stock, 1905-1910.
- Hansen, Erik and Prosper, Peter, Jr. "The Nationaal Arbeids-Secretariaat. Revolutionary Syndicalism in the Netherlands, 1892-1914," Societas - A Review of Social History: (Spring 1977), 121-44.
- Hardy, George. Those Stormy Years: Memories of the Fight for Freedom on Five Continents. London: Lawrence and Wishart, 1956.

- Harmsen, Ger and Reinalda, Bob. Voor de bevrijding van de arbeid: beknopte geschiedenis van de nederlandse vakbeweging. Nijmegen: SUN, 1975.
- Haupt, Georges. "Lenin i bolscevichi e la seconda internazionale." Rivista storica del socialismo, no. 29 (Sept.-Dec. 1966), pp. 3-30.
- Holton, Bob. British Syndicalism, 1900-1914: Myths and Realities. London: Pluto Press, 1976.
- Holton, R. J. "Syndicalist Theories of the State," Sociological Review 28 (February 1980):5-21.
- Holton, Robert J. "Revolutionary Syndicalism and the British Labour Movement," in The Development of Trade Unionism in Great Britain and Germany, 1880-1914. Pp. 266-82. Wolfgang J. Mommsen and Hans-Gerhard Husung, eds. London: George Allen and Unwin, 1985.
- Hulse, James W. The Forming of the Communist International. Stanford: Stanford University Press, 1964.
- Hyman, Ruth Link-Salinger. Gustav Landauer: Philosopher of Utopia. Indianapolis: Hackett, 1977.
- Industrial Workers of the World. The IWW Reply to the Red Trade Union International (Moscow) by the General Executive Board of the Industrial Workers of the World. Chicago: n.p. [IWW], 1922.
- . Stenographic Report of the Eighth Annual Convention of the Industrial Workers of the World. Chicago, Illinois. September 15th to September 29th 1913. Cleveland: IWW, n.d.
- Institute of Marxism-Leninism. The Hague Congress of the First International, September 2-7, 1872: Minutes and Documents. Moscow: Progress Publishers, 1976.
- International Committee for Political Prisoners, ed. Letters from Russian Prisoners. London: C.W. Daniel, 1925.
- International Working Men's Association [Alexander Schapiro]. The International Working Men's Association: Its Purpose - its Aims - its Principles. Berlin: IWMA, n.d. [1933].
- Internationale Syndicale Rouge. Résolutions et statuts adoptés au Ier Congrès International des Syndicats Révolutionnaires, Moscow: 3-19 juillet 1921. Paris: Librairie du Travail, 1921.
- Internationalen Arbeiter-Assoziation. I.A.A.: 10 Jahre internationaler Klassenkampf: Gedenkschrift zum zehnjährigen Bestehen der Internationalen Arbeiter-Assoziation, Berlin: IAA, n.d. [1933].
- . Resolutionen des Internationalen Kongressen der revolutionären Syndikalisten zu Berlin vom 25. Dezember 1922 bis 2. Januar 1923. IAA, n.d. [1923].
- . Taetigheit der Internationalen Arbeiter-Assoziation, 1933-1935. N.p.: IAA, n.d.
- Joll, James. The Anarchists. 2nd ed. Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 1980.
- . The Second International, 1889-1914. Rev. ed. London and Boston: Routledge and K. Paul, 1974.
- Jones, Adrian. "The French Railway Strikes of January-May 1920: New Syndicalist Ideas and Emergent Communism." French Historical Studies 12 (Fall 1982):508-40.
- Jong, Edz., Fr. de. Om de plaats van de arbeid: een geschiedkundig overzicht van ontstaan en ontwikkeling het Nederlands Verbond van Vakverenigingen. Amsterdam: N.V.V., 1956.
- Jonge, A.A. Het communisme in Nederland: de geschiedenis van een politieke partij. Den Haag: Kruseman, 1972.
- Jospin, Samuel. "La Confédération Générale du Travail Syndicaliste Révolutionnaire: à travers son journal 'Le Combat Syndicaliste' (1926-1937)." Mémoire d'histoire sociale 1 (1965):43-50.

Mémoire d'histoire sociale 1 (1965):43-50.

Jouhaux, Léon. Le mouvement ouvrier en France. Paris: Rivière, 1977.

Juillard, Jacques. La Confédération Générale du Travail. Paris: PUF, 1977.

Karlsson, H. Den svenska arbetarrörelsen. Stockholm: Dendal, 1977.

Kater, Fritz. Die deutsche Arbeiterbewegung von Fritz Kater. Berlin: Deutscher Verlag, 1977.

---. Freie Arbeitervereine in Deutschland. Berlin: Kater, 1977.

Kendall, Walter. The Origins of the Industrial Revolution. London: Penguin, 1977.

Kolontay, A. The Revolution and the Workers. Moscow: Progress Publishers, 1977.

Kool, Frits. De Nederlandse arbeidersbeweging. Amsterdam: De Arbeiderspers, 1977.

Kriegel, Annie. Les ouvriers en France. Paris: PUF, 1977.

---. Aux origines du mouvement ouvrier. Paris: PUF, 1977.

---. "Le Syndicat ouvrier." Pp. 1-10. Libre de la Bibliothèque de la CGT. Paris: CGT, 1977.

Lazitch, Branislav. La révolution internationale. London: Stanford University Press, 1977.

Lefebvre, Raymond. La révolution industrielle. Paris: Vrin, 1977.

Lehning, Arthur. La révolution industrielle. Paris: Vrin, 1977.

---. La révolution industrielle. Paris: Vrin, 1977.

---. "Die Internationale der Arbeiterbewegung und Ideologie." Tagung der Arbeiterbewegung. 99. Geschichte der Arbeiterbewegung. Paderborn: Schöningh, 1977.

Lenin, V.I. Die revolutionäre Syndikalisten. Moscow: Progress Publishers, 1977.

---. "The International Working Men's Association." Moscow: Progress Publishers, 1977.

---. "Left-Wing Communism: An Infantile Disorder." Moscow: Progress Publishers, 1977.

---. "The Party and the Workers." Moscow: Progress Publishers, 1977.

- Mémoire de maîtrise, 1974. Centre de recherches d'histoire des mouvements sociaux et du syndicalisme, Paris.
- Jouhaux, Léon. I. Le Syndicalisme français. II. Contre la guerre: conférence faite à Berlin. Bibliothèque de Mouvement Prolétarien, XIV. Paris: Marcel Rivière, 1913.
- Juillard, Jacques. Fernand Pelloutier et les origines du syndicalisme d'action directe. Paris: Editions du Seuil, 1971.
- Kaplan, Temma. Anarchists of Andalusia. Princeton: Princeton University Press, 1977.
- Karlsson, Henry, ed. Dansk arbejderbevaegelse, 1871-1939. Copenhagen: Gyldendal, 1975.
- Kater, Fritz. Die Entwicklung der deutschen Gewerkschaftsbewegung: Vortrag von Fritz Kater gehalten am 17. Januar 1921 in der Berliner Arbeiter-Börse. Berlin: Der Syndikalist, 1921.
- . Freie Vereinigung deutscher Gewerkschaften: Eine kurze Geschichte der deutschen soziale-revolutionären Gewerkschaftsbewegung. Berlin: Fritz Kater, 1912.
- Kendall, Walter. The Revolutionary Movement in Britain, 1900-1921: The Origins of British Communism. London: Weidenfeld and Nicolson, 1969.
- Kolontay, A. The Workers Opposition in Russia. Chicago: IWW, n.d.
- Kool, Frits, ed. Die Linke gegen die Parteiherrschaft. Dokumente der Weltrevolution, vol. 3. Olten and Freiburg im Breisgau: Walter-Verlag, 1970.
- Kriegel, Annie. Les Internationales Ouvrières (1864-1943). Paris: Presses Universitaires de France, 1964.
- . Aux origines du communisme français, 1914-1920: contribution à l'histoire du mouvement ouvrier français. 2 vols. Paris: Mouton, 1964.
- . "Le Syndicalisme Révolutionnaire et Proudhon." in L'Actualité de Proudhon. Pp. 47-66. Brussels: Editions de l'Institut de Sociologie de l'Université Libre de Bruxelles, 1967.
- Kulemann, W. Die Berufsvereine. 3 vols. Jena: Gustav Fischer, 1908.
- Labi, Maurice. La Grande Division des travailleurs: première scission de la CGT (1914-1921). Paris: Editions Ouvrières, 1964.
- Lazitch, Branko and Drachkovitch, Milorad. Lenin and the Comintern. Vol. 1. Stanford: Hoover Institution Press, 1972.
- Lefebvre, Raymond. L'Internationale des soviets. Collection "Vie Ouvrière" no. 2. Paris: Vie Ouvrière, 1919.
- Lehning, Arthur. "Del sindicalismo revolucionario al anarcosindicalismo: el nacimiento de la Asociacion Internacional de Trabajadores de Berlin." Cuadernos de Ruedo ibérico, no. 58-60 (July-Dec. 1977), pp. 55-75.
- . "Die Internationale Arbeiter-Assoziation (IAA), Ein Beitrag zur Theorie und Ideologie der anarchosyndikalistischen Internationale." Internationale Tagung der Historiker der Arbeiterbewegung. 16. Linzer Konferenz. Pp. 76-99. Geschichte der Arbeiterbewegung ITH-Tagungsberichte 16. Vienna Europaverlag, 1982.
- Lenin, V.I. "Can the Bolsheviks Retain State Power?" Collected Works. 26 (Moscow: Progress Publishers, 1964):87-136.
- . "The Immediate Tasks of the Soviet Government." Collected Works. 27 (Moscow: Progress Publishers, 1965):235-77.
- . "'Left-Wing' " Communism: An Infantile Disorder." Collected Works. 31 (Moscow: Progress Publishers, 1965):17-118.
- . "The Party Crisis." Collected Works. 32 (Moscow: Progress Publishers, 1965):43-53.

- . "The Role and Function of the Trade Unions." Collected Works. 33 (Moscow: Progress Publishers, 1966):184-96.
- . "The State and Revolution." Collected Works. 25 (Moscow: Progress Publishers, 1964):381-492.
- . "The Tasks of the Proletariat in the Present Revolution." Collected Works. 24 (Moscow: Progress Publishers, 1964):19-26.
- Lera, Angel Maria de. Angel Pestaña: Retrato de un anarquista. Barcelona: Argos, 1978.
- Linden, Marcel van der. "Vorläufiges zur vergleichenden Sozialgeschichte des Syndikalismus," in Anarchismus in Kunst und Politik: Zum 85. Geburtstag von Arthur Lehning. Pp. 45-63. Heribert Baumann, Francis Bulhof and Gottfried Mergner, eds. Oldenburg: Universität Oldenburg, 1985.
- Lorenz, Einhart. Arbeiderbevegelsens historie. En innføring: Norsk sosialisme i internasjonalt perspektiv. 1. Del 1789-1930. Oslo: Pax Forlag A.S., 1974.
- Lorenzo, Cesar M. Les Anarchistes espagnols et le pouvoir, 1868-1969. Paris: Editions de Seuil, 1969.
- Lorwin, Lewis L. The International Labor Movement: History, Policies, Outlook. New York: Harper, 1953.
- . Labor and Internationalism. New York: Harper, 1929.
- Lorwin, Val R. The French Labor Movement. Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 1954.
- Lösche, Peter. Anarchismus. Darmstadt: Wissenschaft Buchgesellschaft, 1977.
- . "Anarchismus - Versuch einer Definition und historischen Typologie." Politische Vierteljahresschrift. 15 (1974):53-73.
- Losofsky, A. De Balans van vijf jaar werken: geschiedenis der R.V.I. (met naschrift van E.J. Bouwman). Amsterdam: NAS, 1925.
- Losowsky, A. Frankreich und die französische Arbeiterbewegung in der Gegenwart. Bibliothek der Roten Gewerkschafts-Internationale, vol. 13. Berlin: Führer-Verlag, 1923.
- Lozovsky, A. Les Syndicats et la révolution: discours prononcé par A. Lozovsky au congrès de la CGTU à Saint-Etienne, juin 1922, suivi du message de l'Internationale Syndicale Rouge. Petite Bibliothèque de l'Internationale Syndicale Rouge, no. 4. Paris: Librairie du Travail, n.d. [1922?].
- Louis, Paul. Histoire du mouvement syndical en France. 2 vols. 1. De 1789 à 1918 (1947); 2. De 1918 à 1948 (1948). Paris: Valois.
- Lukács, Georg. Geschichte und Klassenbewusstsein, Frühschriften II. Georg Lukács Werke. Vol. 2:161-517. Neuwied and Berlin: Luchterhand, 1968.
- Lund, Eugene. Prophet of Community: The Romantic Socialism of Gustav Landauer. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1973.
- Lupo, Orietta. "I sindacalisti rivoluzionari nel 1914." Rivista storica del socialismo 10 (1967):43-82.
- Maitron, Jean. Le Mouvement Anarchiste en France. 2 vols. 1. Des origines à 1914; 2. De 1914 à nos jours. Paris: François Maspero, 1975.
- Marx, Karl. Karl Marx and the First International. Saul K. Padover, ed. Karl Marx Library, vol. 3. New York: McGraw-Hill, 1973.
- . Political Writings. Vol. 3. The First International and After. David Fernbach, ed. New York: Vintage, 1974.
- and Friedrich Engels. Werke. 39 vols. Berlin: Dietz, 1956-1968.
- Maurer, Charles B. Call to Revolution: The Mystical Anarchism of Gustav Landauer. Detroit: Wayne State University Press, 1971.
- Maurin, Joaquín. Revolucion y contrarrevolucion en España. N.p. [Paris]: Ruedo ibérico, 1966.
- Maximoff, G.P. The Guillotine at Work: Twenty Years of Terror in Russia

(Data and Berkman F
---, ed. The F
Illinois: Fre
McMechan, W
Exploration of Wisconsin McNeal, Rob of the So Meaker, Gera University
Mehring, Fra Leben, The Merten, Peter Assoziation
Miller, Martin
Miller, Suzan Revolution
Frankfurt
Molnar, Mikl Londres de
---. "Proble 1917-1922 d'Etudes E
Moss, Bernard Socialism of Californ Müller, Duk delegierte dikalismus Historiker
---. "Syndica
The Devel
1914. Pp.
London: G
---. "Der Syn in Solidar geschichte and Klaus Murphy, J. T.
Congress chester: Br
n.d.[1921?
Nationaal An tariaat in NAS, n.d.
---. *Jaaren
jaren 1922
Nollau, Gün and Metho
Nomad, Max 1864-1943 of War, R*

- Collected Works. 33
- Moscow: Progress
- Collected Works.
- guista, Barcelona:
- zialgeschichte des
- am 85. Geburtstag
- ancis Bulhof and
- 1985.
- Norsk sosialisme
- Forlag A.S., 1974.
- 1868-1969. Paris:
- ry. Policies, Out-
- Harvard University
- gesellschaft, 1977.
- chen Typologie."
- met naschrift
- gung in der Ge-
- le, vol. 13. Berlin:
- par A. Lozovsky
- du message de
- Internationale
- 1922?].
- 2 vols. 1. De 1789
- Schriften II. Georg
- hand, 1968.
- alism of Gustav
- guista storica del
- s. 1. Des origines
- 1975.
- Padover, ed. Karl
- David Fernbach,
- 1968.
- chism of Gustav
- p. [Paris]: Ruedo
- Terror in Russia
- (Data and Documents). Chicago: The Chicago Section of the Alexander Berkman Fund, 1940.
- , ed. The Political Philosophy of Bakunin: Scientific Anarchism. Glencoe, Illinois: Free Press, 1953.
- McMechan, William Edgar. "The Building Trades of France, 1907-1914: An Exploration of Revolutionary Syndicalism." Ph.D. dissertation, University of Wisconsin, 1975.
- McNeal, Robert H., gen. ed. Resolutions and Decisions of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union. 4 vols. Toronto: University of Toronto Press, 1974.
- Meaker, Gerald. The Revolutionary Left in Spain, 1914-1923. Stanford: Stanford University Press, 1974.
- Mehring, Franz. Gesammelte Schriften. Vol. 3. Karl Marx: Geschichte seines Leben. Thomas Höhle, Hans Koch, Josef Scheifstein, eds. Berlin: Dietz, 1964.
- Merten, Peter. Anarchismus und Arbeiterkampf in Portugal. Hamburg: Libertäre Assoziation, 1981.
- Miller, Martin A. Kropotkin. Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1976.
- Miller, Suzanne. Das Problem der Freiheit im Sozialismus: Freiheit, Staat und Revolution in der Sozialdemokratie von Lassalle bis zum Revisionismusstreit. Frankfurt am Main: Europäische Verlagsanstalt, 1964.
- Molnar, Miklos. Le Déclin de la Première Internationale: la conférence de Londres de 1871. Geneva: Droz, 1963.
- . "Problèmes d'ordre idéologique," in Situations révolutionnaires en Europe, 1917-1922. Pp. 141-50. Charles L. Bertrand, ed. Montreal: Interuniversitaires d'Etudes Européennes, 1977.
- Moss, Bernard H. The Origins of the French Labor Movement, 1830-1914: The Socialism of Skilled Workers. Berkeley, Los Angeles and London: University of California Press, 1976.
- Müller, Dirk H. Gewerkschaftliche Versammlungsdemokratie und Arbeiterdelegierte vor 1918: Ein Beitrag zur Geschichte des Lokalismus, des Syndikalismus und der entstehenden Rätebewegung. Veröffentlichungen der Historiker Kommission zu Berlin, vol. 49. Berlin: Colloquium, 1985.
- . "Syndicalism and Localism in the German Trade Union Movement," in The Development of Trade Unionism in Great Britain and Germany, 1880-1914. Pp. 239-65. Wolfgang J. Mommsen and Hans-Gerhard Husung, eds. London: George Allen and Unwin, 1985.
- . "Der Syndikalismus in der deutschen Gewerkschaftsbewegung vor 1914," in Solidarität und Menschenwürde: Etappen der deutschen Gewerkschaftsgeschichte von den Anfängen bis zur Gegenwart. Pp. 57-65. Erich Matthias and Klaus Schönhoven, eds. Bonn: Neue Gesellschaft, 1984.
- Murphy, J.T. The "Reds" in Congress: Preliminary Report of the First World Congress of the Red International of Trade and Industrial Unions. Manchester: British Bureau, Red International of Trade and Industrial Unions, n.d.[1921?].
- Nationaal Arbeids-Secretariaat. Jaarverslagen van het Nationaal Arbeids-Secretariaat in Nederland over de Jaren 1911, 1912 en 1913. N.p. [Amsterdam]: NAS, n.d. [1914?].
- . Jaarverslagen van het Nationaal Arbeids-Secretariat in Nederland over de jaren 1922-1923-1924. Amsterdam: n.p. [NAS], n.d. [1925?].
- Nollau, Günther. International Communism and World Revolution: History and Methods. London: Hollis and Carter, 1961.
- Nomad, Max. "The Anarchist Tradition," in The Revolutionary Internationals, 1864-1943. Pp. 57-92. Milorad Drachkovitch, ed. Stanford: Hoover Institution of War, Revolution and Peace, 1966.

- Paniagua, Xavier. "La visio de Gaston Leval de la Russia Sovietica el 1921." Publicat a Recerques, no. 3 (1974).
- Papayanis, Nicholas Alphonse Merrheim. The Emergence of Reformism in Revolutionary Syndicalism 1871-1925. Dordrecht, Boston and Lancaster: Martinus Nijhoff, 1985.
- Pataud, E. and Pouget, E. Comment nous ferons la révolution. Paris: Tallandier, n.d.[1909].
- Peirats, José. Los anarquistas en la crisis política española. Buenos Aires: Alfa, 1964.
- Pelloutier, Fernand. Histoire des bourses du travail: origine - institutions - avenir. Ouvrage posthume. Paris: Schleicher Frères, 1902.
- Perlmutter, Amos. Modern Authoritarianism: A Comparative Institutional Analysis. New Haven and London: Yale University Press, 1981.
- Persson, Lennart K. Syndikalismen i Sverige, 1903-1922. Stockholm: Federativs Förlag, 1975.
- . Syndikalismen i Sverige, 1908-1917. Licentiatavhandling, 1968.
- Pestaña, Angel. Consideraciones y juicios acerca de la Tercera Internacional. Santiago and Madrid: XYZ rpt. 1968. First published 1922.
- . Lo que aprendi en la vida, in Pestaña, Trayectoria sindicalista. Pp. 79-240. Antonio Elorza, ed. Madrid: Tebas, 1974.
- . Memoria que al comite de la Confederacion Nacional del Trabajo presenta de su gestion en el II Congreso de la Tercera Internacional, el delegado Angel Pestaña. Madrid: Nueva Senda, n.d.[1921].
- . Setenta dias en Rusia: lo que yo vi. Barcelona: Cosmos, n.d. [1924].
- . Terrorismo en Barcelona (memorias inédita). Xavier Tusell and Genoveva Garcia Qucipo de Llano, eds. Barcelona: Planeta, 1979.
- Peterson, Larry. "The One Big Union in International Perspective: Revolutionary Industrial Unionism, 1900-1925," in Work, Community and Power: The Experience of Labor in Europe and America, 1900-1925. Pp. 49-87. James E. Cronin and Carmen Siriani, eds. Philadelphia: Temple University Press, 1983.
- Phillip, David. Le Mouvement ouvrier en Norvège. Paris: Editions Ouvrières, 1958.
- Polak, Henri. Federatie van vakverenigingen. Een voorstel aan de georganiseerde en ongeorganiseerde arbeiders van Nederland, door Henri Polak, Voorzitter van den Algemeenen Nederlandschen Diamantbewerdersbond. Amsterdam: Algemeenen Nederlandschen Diamantbewerdersbond, 1898.
- Pollitt, Harry. Serving My Time: An Apprenticeship to Politics. London: Lawrence and Wishart, 1940.
- Postgate, R.W. The Builders' History. London: National Federation of Building Trade Operatives, 1923.
- Pouget, Emile. Les Bases du syndicalisme. Paris: Bibliothèque Syndicaliste, n.d.
- . La Confédération Générale du Travail. 2nd ed. Bibliothèque du Mouvement Prolétarien, 2. Paris: Marcel Rivière, n.d. [1908?].
- Price, John. The International Labour Movement. London: Oxford University Press, 1945.
- Proudhon, Pierre-Joseph. Correspondance de P.-J. Proudhon. 14 vols. Paris: A. Lacroix, 1874-1875.
- . Oeuvres complètes de P.-J. Proudhon. 15 vols. Nouvelle ed. C. Bouglé and H. Moysset, eds. Paris: M. Rivière, 1923 - .
- Puech, Jules L. Le Proudhonisme dans l'Association Internationale des Travailleurs. Paris: Alcan, 1907.

Relenk, Mich
seul resté mandat. P Resis, Albert in Essays Robinson.
1963.
Résolutions Révolution Riddell, John ments: 19
Ridley, F.F. R
Cambridge
Riosa, Alceo.
Socialista
Robert, Jean-unique." C 1972), pp.
Roberts, Davi University
Rocker, Rudo
---. Der Ban
1921.
---. Hinter S
---. Johann
---. Aus den
Hans Peter
---. Die Prin
Rocker au
Rosmer, Alfre
Horay, 19
Die Rote Ge Internatio vember bis Internatio
Roth, Jack J.
Angeles an Ruppert, Mar
opbouw en Rüter, A.J.C. in Nederl
J.S. Barts
1948. I: 184
---. De Spo
Nederland
Saposs, Davie
1931.
Sassenbach, J
ung. Amst Schapiro, Ale reichs." E
no. 4 (Jan

- Wietica el 1921."
- of Reformism in and Lancaster:
- Paris: Tallandier,
- Buenos Aires: Alfa,
- stitutions - avenir.
- the Institutional
[Sl.]
- olm: Federativs
- 1968.
- a Internacional.
- icalista. Pp. 79-
- Trabajo presenta
nals el delegado
- [1921].
- and Genoveva
- ective: Revolu-
nity and Power:
Pp. 49-87. James University Press,
- tions Ouvrières,
- re georganiseerde
Polak, Voorzitter
nd. Amsterdam:
- iques. London:
- tion of Building
- yndicaliste, n.d.
- du Mouvement
- ord University
- 14 vols. Paris:
- ed. C. Bouglé
- onale des Tra-
- Relenk, Michiel. Travaux de camarade Michel Relenk au congrès de l'I.S.R., seul resté fidèle à la conception du syndicalisme révolutionnaire et à son mandat. Paris: Coster, n.d.[1921].
- Resis, Albert. "Comintern Policy Toward the World Trade-Union Movement," in Essays in Russian and Soviet History in Honor of Geroid Tanquary Robinson. Pp. 237-52. J.S. Curtiss, ed. New York: Columbia University Press, 1963.
- Résolutions et statuts adoptés au Ier Congrès International des Syndicats Révolutionnaires, Moscou: 3-19 juillet 1921*. Paris: Librairie du Travail, 1921.
- Riddell, John, ed. Lenin's Struggle for a Revolutionary International. Documents: 1907-1916, The Preparatory Years. New York: Monad Press, 1984.
- Ridley, F.F. Revolutionary Syndicalism in France: The Direct Action of its Time. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1970.
- Riosa, Alceo. Il sindacalismo rivoluzionario in Italia e la lotta politica nel Partito Socialista dell'era giolittiana. N.p.: De Donato, n.d. [1974].
- Robert, Jean-Louis and Tartakowsky, Danielle. "Internationale Parti et front unique." Cahiers d'histoire de l'Institut Maurice Thorez, no. 1 (Nov.-Dec. 1972), pp. 32-44.
- Roberts, David D. The Syndicalist Tradition and Italian Fascism. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, 1979.
- Rocker, Rudolf. Anarcho-Syndicalism. London: Secker and Warburg, 1938.
- . Der Bankrott des russischen Staats-Kommunismus. Berlin: Der Syndikalist, 1921.
- . Hinter Stacheldraht und Gittern. Berlin: Der Syndikalist, 1925.
- . Johann Most: Das Leben eines Rebellen. Berlin: Der Syndikalist, 1924.
- . Aus den Memoiren eines deutschen Anarchisten. Magdalena Melnikow and Hans Peter Duerr, eds. Frankfurt am Main: Suhrkamp, 1974.
- . Die Prinzipienklärung des Syndikalismus: Referat des Genossen Rudolf Rocker auf dem 12. Syndikalist-Kongress. Berlin: Der Syndikalist, 1920.
- Rosmer, Alfred. Moscou sous Lénine: les origines du communisme. Paris: Pierre Horay, 1953.
- Die Rote Gewerkschafts-Internationale. Beschlüsse und Resolutionen des 2. Internationalen Kongresses der revolutionären Gewerkschaften vom 19. November bis 2. Dezember 1922 in Moskau. Bibliothek der Roten Gewerkschafts-Internationale, vol. 16. Berlin: Führer-Verlag, 1923.
- Roth, Jack J. The Cult of Violence: Sorel and the Sorelians. Berkeley, Los Angeles and London: University of California Press, 1980.
- Ruppert, Marinus. De Nederlandse vakbeweging. 2 vols. 1. De opkomst; 2. De opbouw en het werk. Haarlem: Bohn, 1953.
- Rüter, A.J.C. "De Nederlandse trekken der Nederlandse arbeidersbeweging," in Nederland tussen de natiën: een bijdrage tot onze cultuurgeschiedenis. J.S. Bartstra and Willem Banning, eds. 2 vols. Amsterdam: Ploegsma, 1946-1948. I:184-212.
- . De Spoorwegstakingen van 1903: een spiegel der arbeidersbeweging in Nederland. Leiden: E.J. Brill, 1935.
- Saposs, David. The Labor Movement in Post-War France. New York: Russell, 1931.
- Sassenbach, Johann. Fünfundzwanzig Jahre internationale Gewerkschaftsbewegung. Amsterdam: Internationalen Gewerkschaftsbundes, 1926.
- Schapiro, Alexander. "Ein Blick in den revolutionären Syndikalismus Frankreichs." Die Internationale: Organ der Internationalen Arbeiter-Assoziation, no. 4 (January 1924), pp. 13-19.

- . "Den franska syndikalismens förfallsperiod." Syndikalismen. October 1926, pp. 185-90.
- Schectman, Joseph. "Soviet Russia, Zionism, and Israel," in Russian Jewry, 1917-1967. Gregor Aronson, Jacob Frumkin, Alexis Goldenweiser, Joseph Lewitan, eds. New York, South Brunswick and London: Thomas Yoseloff, 1969.
- Schilp, Dirk. Dromen van de revolutie: een verzwegen hoofdstuk uit de sociale beweging verteld aan Joop van Tijn. Amsterdam: Wereldbibliotheek, 1967.
- Schneider, Dieter Marc. Revolutionärer Syndikalismus und Bolschewismus: Der Prozess der ideologischen Auseinandersetzung französischer Syndikalistinnen mit den Bolschewiki, 1914-1922. Erlangen Studien, vol. 4, Reinhard Lahme, Detlef Bernd Leistner, Gerd-Dietman Peschel, Gerd Strauss, eds. Erlangen: Palm and Enke, 1974.
- Schorske, Carl E. German Social Democracy, 1905-1917: The Development of the Great Schism. New York: Harper and Row, 1972. First published 1955.
- Schöttler, Peter. Die Entstehung der "Bourses du Travail". Sozialpolitik und französischer Syndikalismus am Ende des 19. Jahrhunderts. Frankfurt and New York: Campus, 1982.
- . "Syndikalismus in der europäischen Arbeiterbewegung. Neuere Forschungen in Frankreich, England und Deutschland," in Arbeiter und Arbeiterbewegung im Vergleich. Pp. 419-75. Klaus Tenfelde, ed. Historische Zeitschrift, Sonderheft 15. Munich: Oldenbourg, 1986.
- Serge, Victor. Mémoires d'un révolutionnaire 1901-1941. Paris: Editions du Seuil, 1951.
- Skirda, Alexandre, ed. Les Anarchistes dans la révolution russe. Paris: Editions Tête de Feuilles, 1973.
- Smith, S.A. Red Petrograd: Revolution in the Factories, 1917-1918. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1983.
- Sorel, Georges. Réflexions sur la violence. Paris: Pages Libres, 1908.
- Sorenson, Jay B. The Life and Death of Soviet Trade Unionism, 1917-1928. New York: Atherton Press, 1969.
- Souchy, Augustin. Diktatur och Socialism. Stockholm: Axel Holmstroems, 1918.
- . "Die Gründung der Internationalen Arbeiter-Assoziation," in I.A.A.: 10 Jahre internationaler Klassenkampf: Gedenkschrift zum zehnjährigen Bestehen der Internationalen Arbeiter-Assoziation. Pp. 15-8. Berlin: IAA, n.d. [1933].
- . Gustav Landauer: Revolutions Philosoph. Stockholm: Axel Holmstroems, 1920.
- . "Vorsicht: Anarchist!" Ein Leben für die Freiheit: Politische Erinnerungen. Darmstadt and Neuwied: Luchterhand, 1977.
- . Wie lebt der Arbeiter und Bauer in Russland und in der Ukraine? Resultat einer Studienreise von April bis Oktober 1920. Berlin: Der Syndikalist, 1921.
- Sousa, Manuel Joaquin de. O Sindicalismo em Portugal. 4th ed. Porto: Movimento Operario Portugues, 1974.
- Spitzer, Alan B. "Anarchy and Culture: Fernand Pelloutier and the Dilemma of Revolutionary Syndicalism." International Review of Social History 8 (1963):379-88.
- Spriano, Paolo. L'occupazione delle fabbriche, settembre 1920. Turin: Einaudi, 1964.
- Spuhler, Hans. Der Generalstreik der Eisenbahner in Frankreich von 1910: Das Scheitern des Revolutionären Syndikalismus und die repressive Politik Briands. Berlin: Duncker and Humblot, 1975.
- Stearns, Peter N. Lives of Labor: Work in a Maturing Industrial Society. New York: Holmes and Meier, 1975.

Steinberg, Max. révolutionnaire. February 197.

Stieklow, George. Stuttgart: Die

Sukhanov, N.N. Press. 1955.

Sykes, Thomas. Ph.D. disser

---. "Revolution

Strikes of 190

History 21: 1

Thomas, Paul. Routledge an

Trotsky, Leon. Arbor: Unive

Tuñón de Lara. Taurus, 1972.

Tusell, Xavier. Pestaña, Ter

Ullman, Joan C. 1875-1912, C

Umbreit, Paul. nerungschrit

Generalkomm

mission der C

Vallance, Marv

Contempora

Vallina, Pedro. Vie Ouvrière. D

Vogel, Angela. vergessen

Voline [V.M. Fil

inédite sur

Wade, Rex A. Stanford: St

Wedman, Hom

9:112-22.

Westergaard-Th

Syndicalist C

36 (1981):92.

---. "Syndicali

nadian Jour

---. "Towards

national Re

Wienand, Peter

Karin Kram

Willard, Claude

soviétique p

toire de l'U

Willeke, Edua

Nationalist

- October 1926.
- Russian Jewry, weiser. Joseph Thomas Yoseloff,
- ut de sociale theek, 1967.
- ismus: Der ndikalist mit Lahme. Detlef alangen: Palm
- elopment of ublished 1955.
- zialpolitik und Frankfurt and
- ere Forschungs- und Arbeiterbe- che Zeitschrift,
- itions du Seuil,
- Paris: Editions
8. Cambridge:
- 1917-1928.
- isms, 1918.
- in I.A.A.: 10 higen Besteh- AA, n.d. [1933].
- isms, 1920.
- grinnerungen.
- aine? Resultat ndikalist. 1921.
- th ed. Porto:
- the Dilemma al History 8
- urn: Einaudi,
- on 1910: Das utsche Politik
- al Society. New
- Steinberg, Maxime. "A l'origine du communisme belge: l'extrême gauche révolutionnaire d'avant 1914." Cahiers Marxistes 3 (December 1970 - January/February 1971):3-34.
- Stiecklow, Georg. Die bakunistische Internationale nach dem Haager Kongress. Stuttgart: Dietz, 1914.
- Sukhanov, N.N. The Russian Revolution, 1917. London: Oxford University Press, 1955.
- Sykes, Thomas. "The Practice of Revolutionary Syndicalism in Italy, 1905-1910." Ph.D. dissertation, Columbia University, 1974.
- . "Revolutionary Syndicalism in the Italian Labor Movement: The Agrarian Strikes of 1907-08 in the Province of Parma." International Review of Social History 21 (1976):186-211.
- Thomas, Paul. Karl Marx and the Anarchists. London, Boston and Henley: Routledge and Kegan Paul, 1980.
- Trotsky, Leon. Terrorism and Communism: A Reply to Karl Kautsky. Ann Arbor: University of Michigan Press, 1961. Originally published 1920.
- Tuñón de Lara, Manuel. El movimiento obrero en la historia de España. Madrid: Taurus, 1972.
- Tusell, Xavier and Garcia Queipo de Llano, Genoveva. "Prologue," in Angel Pestaña, Terrorismo en Barcelona. Pp. 9-43. Barcelona: Planeta, 1979.
- Ullman, Joan Connelly. The Tragic Week: A Study of Anticlericalism in Spain, 1875-1912. Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 1968.
- Umbreit, Paul. 25 Jahre deutscher Gewerkschaftsbewegung, 1890-1915: Erinnerungsschrift zum fünfundzwanzigjährigen Jubiläum der Begründung der Generalkommission der Gewerkschaften Deutschlands. Berlin: Generalkommission der Gewerkschaften Deutschlands, 1915.
- Vallance, Margaret. "Rudolf Rocker - a Biographical Sketch," Journal of Contemporary History 8 (July 1973):73-95.
- Vallina, Pedro. Mis Memorias. Caracas: Tierra y Libertad, 1968.
- Vie Ouvrière. D'Amiens à Bourges: documents. Paris: Vie Ouvrière, n.d. [1923].
- Vogel, Angela. Der deutsche Anarcho-Syndikalismus: Genese und Theorie einer vergessenen Bewegung. Berlin: Karin Kramer, 1977.
- Voline [V.M. Eikhenbaum]. La Révolution Inconnue, 1917-1921: documentation inédite sur la révolution russe. Paris: Pierre Belfond, 1969.
- Wade, Rex A. Red Guards and Workers' Militias in the Russian Revolution. Stanford: Stanford University Press, 1984.
- Wedman, Homme. "Christiaan Cornelissen, syndicalist." Maatstaf 24, no. 8/9:112-22.
- Westergard-Thorpe, Wayne, ed. "The Provisional Agenda of the International Syndicalist Congress, London 1913." International Review of Social History 36 (1981):92-103.
- . "Syndicalist Internationalism and Moscow, 1919-1922: The Breach." Canadian Journal of History 14, (August 1979):199-234.
- . "Towards a Syndicalist International: The 1913 London Congress." International Review of Social History 23 (1978):33-78.
- Wienand, Peter. Der "geborene" Rebell: Rudolf Rocker, Leben und Werk. Berlin: Karin Kramer, 1981.
- Willard, Claude. "La Connaissance de la révolution russe et de l'expérience soviétique par le mouvement ouvrier français en 1918-1919." Cahiers d'histoire de l'Institut Maurice Thorez, no. 12-13(1975), pp. 318-30.
- Willeke, Eduard. "Die Ideenwelt des deutschen Syndikalismus." Jahrbücher für Nationalökonomie und Statistik. 3rd series, 73 (June 1928):75-95.

- Williams, George. The First Congress of the Red Trade Union International at Moscow, 1921: A Report of the Proceedings by Geo. Williams, Delegate from the I.W.W. Chicago: IWW, n.d. [1922?].
- Williams, Gwyn A. Proletarian Order: Antonio Gramsci, Factory Councils and the Origins of Italian Communism, 1911-1921. London: Pluto Press, 1975.
- Winkler, Heinrich August. Von der Revolution zur Stabilisierung: Arbeiter und Arbeiterbewegung in der Weimarer Republik 1918 bis 1924. Berlin and Bonn: Dietz, 1984.
- Wohl, Robert. French Communism in the Making, 1914-1924. Stanford: Stanford University Press, 1966.
- Woodcock, George. Pierre-Joseph Proudhon. London: Routledge and Kegan Paul, 1956.
- , and Avakumovic, Ivan. The Anarchist Prince: A Biographical Study of Peter Kropotkin. London and New York: T.V. Boardman, 1950.
- Zinovieff, G. Nicolai Lenin: His Life and Works. London: British Socialist Party, n.d. [1918?].