

Antifa Newsletter

Winter 2005

www.antifa.org.uk

WHO ARE ANTIFA?

Antifa is a collective of militant anti-fascists committed to opposing the rise of the far-right in Britain and abroad. We believe in the 'no platform' philosophy and the tradition of fighting fascism/racism stretching back to Cable Street, Red Lion Square, Lewisham, and Waterloo. We are a network of various organisations and individuals who see anti-fascism as part of the class struggle. After decades of underperforming, the far-right now poses a significant threat politically. The 'Antifa' initiative has come from members of the Anarchist Federation, Class War Federation, and No Platform. Although we come from the anarchist tradition we are open to work with any group/individual that is serious about militant anti-fascism, but we will NOT work with any state affiliated groups. If you want to get involved then please contact us.

ANTI-FASCIST NEWS

BNP Bricked!

A large BNP meeting was held in Shelf, just outside Halifax recently. Nick Griffin was present at the meeting, and on the agenda was party strategy for the May elections, and also the demonstration coinciding with Nick Griffin answering his bail at Halifax police station on April 6th. At short notice, a mobilisation was organised to counter the meeting. Due to police presence on the day, the response to the meeting had to be short and sweet. So thirty anti-fascists pulled up outside the meeting and within seconds were hurling half bricks and rocks at the BNP security, who ran inside the meeting hall. BNP activists cars were smashed causing tens of thousands of pounds worth of damage (most car insurance doesn't cover vandalism). Job done, and a quick getaway was made. No injuries, or arrests made.

Anti-fascist picket forces closure of Nazi mail-box

Members of the Fascists Out! Campaign today succeeded in closing down a mail-box used by the far-right Ulster Nationalist Alliance. The White Nationalist Party, a neo-nazi group which has been linked to racist attacks across Northern Ireland, recently changed it's name to the Nationalist Alliance in order to stand in elections in the UK. The group's organisation in Northern Ireland, now operating under the title 'Ulster Nationalist Alliance' were using a private mail-box in Belfast as a point of contact as well as to distribute race hate material. A spokesperson for the Fascists Out! Campaign claimed today's action was a blow to the ability of fascists to grow in Northern Ireland. "The Nationalist Alliance advertised on their sick website their mail-box in Belfast. We immediately approached the manger of Mail Boxes Etc on Botanic Avenue in person to explain that a Nazi group was using it's mail-box facilities. We provided proof and urged the shop to close it down. After repeated warnings to the shop, we were forced to picket Mail Boxes Etc. The Fascists Out! Campaign believes working class people should unite and fight for our common interests. Today's successful picket is a warning to all businesses not to facilitate any neo-nazi groups in future."

Anyone know a good glazier?

Recently a neo-nazi sect calling itself the Nationalist Alliance held a meeting to remember the recently deceased fascist crank John Tyndall, the meeting was also an attempt to unite fighting factions within the British far right. The venue for the meeting was the Conservative club at Rawdon near Leeds. Although both the club, the regional office and Conservative national headquarters were informed by anti-fascists exactly who was meeting in their building and for what purpose, no attempt was made by them to halt the gathering. It having been made clear that the Conservative party, despite their rhetoric, were unwilling to take any action against fascists in their midst, anti-fascists took matters into their own hands. The meeting was brought to an abrupt end by the anti-fascists and it was again made clear that fascist activity and organisation will be met with robust direct action in West Yorkshire.

Wannabe BNP councillor has a bad night

At the recent Laidon ward council election in Basildon, David King, a former BNP treasurer was standing for a seat. Unite Against Fascism held a meeting a week prior to the election, with fifty people present, but no picket of the election count was organised. On the night it was announced that King had come third, and the twenty BNP members and supporters left the town hall defeated, but unopposed. Two minutes down the road, were seven anti-fascists who just happened to be drinking in town. When the two groups met (despite being outnumbered three to one), a 'full and frank discussion' with King and other members ended with them on the floor, and later receiving treatment from an ambulance crew. One of the BNP 'security' entourage panicked and managed to spray two anti-fascists with mace, as well as half his mates. No arrests were made.

BNP stalled by Socialists

British National Party activists were forced to close a publicity stall in the city centre after clashing with Scottish Socialist Party members. The SSP group - including two prospective candidates in the coming General Election, Morag Robertson for Edinburgh South and Steven Nimmo for Livingston - arrived at the stall on Princes Street where BNP campaigners were handing out party leaflets. For one hour, they surrounded the stall to prevent it from operating before it was shut down and the campaigners left. Speaking after Saturday's events, Mr Nimmo said: "If they think they are going to be treated as a respectable political party they can think again."

Fascist Boneheads in Train Accident

After a lot of confusion and last minute date changing (no doubt to keep anti-fascists off the scent), the National Front (NF) finally decided to have their march in Woolwich on Saturday 15th January. The march was held to stir up racial tensions following the horrible murder of white teenager Terry Gregory last year. His family have repeatedly said they want nothing to do with the NF or their politics. This was the one-year anniversary of Terry's death, with the NF also holding a march last year. One group of anti-fascists spotted two particularly ugly and badly dressed boneheads and followed them onto a train heading towards their meet up point. At the next stop, the boneheads were made to feel extremely 'uncomfortable' on the train and one fascist would later turn up to the march looking more than a little worse for wear. One anti-fascist sustained an injury, from the fascists attacking his fists with their faces! The NF later held their march, bringing out thirty members (almost half last year's total) and the Unite Against Fascism picket had around a hundred, with similar numbers of police. No arrests were made.

Fash Bashed In Barnsley, Splash

"A small but committed group of anti-fascists confronted three BNP members. These three toilets had their banner in a bag however our heroes were unable to retrieve the offending article as the fash ran straight to the nearest pig van squealling for assistance. The good news is that one of our intrepid few managed to spank a retreating rightist square on the back of the head. As the humbled hater dropped to his knees he recieved a well timed boot straight up his 'weeto'. Later on, the antifascists were informed by the filth that the Fash would not be allowed to march for fear of public disorder."

Holocaust-denier's meeting trashed

David Irving tried to hold a meeting in Arundel over the weekend. The hotel room he booked for the meeting was occupied by anti-fascists before he arrived. Later on his back up venue at a nearby pub was also shut down. All of David's books, videos and leaflets were destroyed, while he was pinned against a wall got a face full of gob! Meanwhile his car, which was parked nearby had its tyres slashed.

Posties fight the BNP

Don't deliver BNP bullshit!

Legally, you do not have to deliver racist or fascist material.
The BNP are lying, fascist scumbags, led by posh Tory muppets who think the rich are "genetically superior" to working class people.
They are the puppets of the rich, who would destroy democracy and trade unions, so we support any posties who refuse to distribute their shite, and we certainly don't want any delivered here. So BNP propaganda? Just bin it!

Antifa - fighting the fascists
www.antifa.org.uk
in association with enragers.net

Posties all over Britain are refusing to deliver election leaflets by the British National Party. The workers are using a conscience clause in their contract for the first time to allow them to refuse to carry election literature for the far right. Antifa distributed this poster for people to put in their window/on their door to show solidarity with the Posties.

Still Physical?

An ex-member of Anti-Fascist Action (AFA) has written an excellent article for the latest copy of Black Flag magazine. From an anarchist perspective, he analyses AFA and its legacy. Below are a couple of quotes from the article, with some conclusions about fighting fascism in 2005.

"AFA used to say - "fascism didn't begin with the concentration camps - that's where it ended". We know where fascism leads, so that leaves no room for complacency. AFA's active policy used to be for "physical and ideological opposition" to fascism. Things are very different today, but either the BNP are fascists or they're not. The need to provide a working class alternative to labour and fascism should be the priority. But if the BNP are fascists - and they are - the case for militant confrontation certainly hasn't gone away."

An ex-Liverpool AFA member.

"I also believe that the demise and then the winding up of Anti-Fascist Action, and the inability so far of militants to develop a similar organisation has been a big boost in the growth in the BNP. AFA was able to physically defeat the BNP in the 1990's, but when the BNP turned away from street confrontations towards electoral politics AFA largely wound down its activities. Instead of harassing the BNP on the doorsteps, and on the streets as they canvassed AFA allowed the BNP to operate freely and the BNP have used the freedom to develop a highly professional electoral strategy"

From "The Rise of the BNP and how to Counter it" Revolutions Per Minute number 11. By Mark Metcalf.

Far Right News

Fascists outnumbered by gays six thousand to one

While thousands of gay, lesbian and transgendered people paraded through the streets of Manchester attracting tens of thousands locals cheering and supporting them, the National Front managed to mobilise all of five fascist from the whole Greater Manchester area in their counter demonstration on Saturday 27th of August. Anti-Fascists from local Unite Against Fascism as well as independent anarchists staged a noisy demonstration and confrontation with the fash who were behind a couple lines of police. Despite this one "Odins cross" fascist flag was taken from the idiots and set alight! One NF supporter shouting anti-immigrant rants was confronted. After only 5-10 minutes of discussion and explaining who the real enemy of the working class are the lad changed his mind from being a raving anti-immigrant to saying that he has some food for thought now. He was saying how he will think about this further thanking the people who confronted him.

WNP hypocrite is convicted of 'cruelty to children'

Ursula Rodgers, a WNP (White Nationalist Party) organiser narrowly escaped jail time when being sentenced on four counts of cruelty to children. On the WNP website, she is quoted demanding that "severe punishment" should be handed out to anyone who harms children!

BNP member caught smuggling illegal immigrants

Ben Boylen, 27, had an Albanian woman inside his car and two of her children hidden in the boot when he was stopped by immigration officials driving off a ferry at Dover. He was so embarrassed after his arrest that he told pals in the far-right British National Party that he had been smuggling drugs. "He could hardly admit to his BNP mates that he had been smuggling in asylum seekers," said an immigration source." He told officers: "Why would I do this? I'm a member of the BNP and I don't agree with illegal immigrants coming to this country."

NF advocates inbreeding to "protect the white race"

Inbreeding might protect the white gene pool, but, as this picture of National Front supporters on a recent march shows, the results aren't pretty!

John Tyndall dead

The sudden death of BNP founder John Tyndall will be met a mixture of wry smiles, cheers and guttural laughter amongst anti-fascists everywhere. The founder and former leader of the British National Party, Tyndall had spent the last few years of his life attempting to regain control of the party he had founded, from the man he had brought in to the organisation as his eventual successor - Nick Griffin.

Griffin's decision not to hang around, but to oust Tyndall in 1999, provoked a sulk of Ted Heath proportions. Tyndall's main strategy as BNP leader was to hold marches and paper sales, and to stand in elections. From this, he expected the organisation to snowball into a mass organisation that would control first the streets of Britain, then its corridors of power. Instead the BNP were simply flattened, on a regular basis from one end of the country to another, as anti-fascists took the battle to them. By the early 1990s Tyndall was still advocating an approach that most of his party members knew, from painful experience, was unworkable.

Nazi record label splits over race allegations

Panzerfaust, the white supremacist record label appears to have gone out of business after one co-owner accused the other of having a Hispanic mother. Panzerfaust was behind 'Project Schoolyard USA', which last year distributed thousands of free CDs to teenagers across the country, particularly in Minnesota. The Southern Poverty Law Center reports that co-owners Byron Calvert and Anthony Pierpont, had a falling out after Calvert saw a copy of Pierpont's birth certificate. The document, which is posted on the center's Web site, indicates that Pierpont's mother was named Maria Marcola del Prado and she was born in Mexico. Also, Calvert claimed in an online posting that Pierpont had sex with Thai prostitutes. As a result, and Pierpont's refusal to take a DNA test, Calvert wrote last month that he would quit the company and so would its webmaster. The center reports that influential hate groups Hammerskin Nation and Volksfront also denounced Pierpont.

NF Members Kinky Way To Go

"Kristian Etechells was found dead in a store cupboard at his Oldham flat with a black kettle-flex around his neck and with a picture of a woman dressed as a schoolgirl on the floor." PC Robert Fitzgerald said he believed Etechells died while enjoying some sort of sexual gratification. "The flex looked like it had been tied to a door handle", he said. Coroner Simon Nelson recorded a verdict of misadventure. He said: "I'm satisfied that he did not intend to kill himself. The more probable explanation is that he decided deliberately to place himself in a situation where he might achieve some form of sexual gratification, which resulted in an unexpected death."

NATIONAL FRONT

HANG OUT
WITH OLDHAMS NO.1

KETTLE-CORD CREW

There ain't no bash like a kettle-cord bash!!

For correspondence use only

www.natfront.net

0121 - 246 6838

Etechells polled just 62 votes when he stood for the National Front in the Lees area of Oldham in the May 2003 local elections. Coroner Simon Nelson recorded a verdict of misadventure. He said: "I'm satisfied that he did not intend to kill himself. The more probable explanation is that he decided deliberately to place himself in a situation where he might achieve some form of sexual gratification, which resulted in an unexpected death."

BNP book black DJ for Xmas party

BNP organiser Bob Garner admitted: "There was a bit of a cock-up. The chap who booked him didn't realise. The DJ sounded white on the phone. "Everyone was a bit alarmed when he turned up with his lights and console. A lot of people weren't happy. I wasn't, really. One or two walked out." None of the BNP members told the DJ who his audience was - and kept their racist beliefs to themselves. Garner added: "We had to be careful what we said. What are you supposed to do? Tell him to clear off. It was very, very embarrassing." Guests at the £12 a head function included BNP London mayoral candidate Julian Leppert and Euro spokesman Chris Roberts.

Has Tony 'The Bomber' Lecomber (left) sold out?

BNP candidate in drug shame

Karl Hanson, A BNP election candidate who is standing in Huddersfield, appeared at Leeds magistrates court charged with five counts of supplying drugs. At a later court hearing he was fined £400 for possessing class A drugs with intent to supply. He was also ordered to pay £40 costs. The Crown Prosecution Service dropped charges of supplying heroin and crack cocaine, which is lucky for Karl, because the BNP manifesto states, "individuals convicted of the importation and large-scale dealing of hard drugs will face the death penalty".

BNP newspaper fiasco

A few months ago, the story broke that the BNP had its newspaper printed by Muslim workers at a print shop owned by a Saudi businessman. Much was made at the time of the hypocrisy of the BNP, however they assured their members that they had changed printers, and found another suitable British firm. Inadvertently, the truth has now come out. The BNP were desperate to make political capital out of 60,000 copies of their newspaper being impounded by HM Customs at Dover on Sunday morning. The party that wants to "put British workers first" have inadvertently revealed that their printing is now done in the Slovak Republic! Amusingly, their excuse for such dishonesty is that British printers won't take their work. Condolences must go to the BNP for being in the disheartening situation of being the leading nationalist party in Britain, but unable to get a British firm to print their newspaper!

QUOTES

Here is a selection of comments some of Antifa's biggest fans have gone on the record with:

"Did these blokes who were scarfed up look like big uniformly muscley men? No anarchist or socialist group could recruit those."

-A Keighley fascist

"Dear AFA..."

-Start of a letter from the National Front!

"An extreme left group."

-Donal Macintyre, Investigative Journalist (sic)

"Another of their number has come into the room, which is in turmoil; this man, perhaps an asylum seeker from an asylum, has a leather jacket with studs and a Mohican haircut with the hair glued up in vertical spikes, King's Road style, coloured alternately pink and orange."

-David Irving

"Three men have been charged following an attack on the Civic Centre after the result of last Thursday's by-election. A mob of about 25 men who appeared to have been drinking heavily, stormed the building."

-Barking and Dagenham Post

"A group of Charlton fans"

-Searchlight

SIMON WIESENTHAL

Simon Wiesenthal has died in Vienna at 96 years of age. "When history looks back I want people to know the Nazis weren't able to kill millions of people and get away with it." Wiesenthal survived the Holocaust (he had been held in Mauthausen along with hundreds of thousands of other Jews and Spanish Republican prisoners) but never returned to his career as architect, instead he became the most effective and well known hunter of Nazi war criminals. He was credited with helping to bring more than 1,100 Nazi war criminals to justice in the decades following World War II. They included Adolf Eichmann, an architect of the Holocaust, and Franz Stangl, commandant of the Treblinka and

Simon Wiesenthal 1908-2005

Sobibor death camps in Poland. In the 1950s, he helped to track down Eichmann in Argentina. In 1960, Eichmann was abducted there by Israeli agents and subsequently tried, convicted and executed in Israel. Mr Wiesenthal went on to establish the Jewish Documentation Centre in Vienna to track down war criminals. It located Stangl in Brazil. He was sentenced to life imprisonment in Germany in 1967, and died in prison. Another high-profile case involved Hermine Ryan, a housewife living in Queens, New York, whom he accused of supervising the killings of hundreds of children at Majdanek camp. She was extradited to Germany for trial as a war criminal in 1973 and received life imprisonment. Mr Wiesenthal's biggest disappointments were his failures to secure the capture of Gestapo chief Heinrich Muller and Auschwitz doctor Josef Mengele.

PRISONER SUPPORT

It doesn't take much time or money to offer solidarity to anti-fascist and class struggle prisoners. Here are the details of some comrades who would appreciate some support, so why not write them a letter?

Tomek Wilkoszewski, Zaklad Karny, ul. Orzechowa 5, 98-200 Sieradz, Poland: Tomek was sentenced to 15 years after killing a nazi in self defence in Radomsko, 1997. He recently appealed against the sentence but with no success.

Christian Sommermann, BuchNr. 833/05-7 , JVA Moabit , Alt-Moabit 12 a , 10559 Berlin Tiergarten Arrested 1st May 2004 during anti-nazi activities, but due to some failures in proceedings he was released last October, although his trial had not been finished. In the middle of february during an anti-nazi demo he got once again arrested and is still in prison waiting for his trial. His physical (and psychological) situation is very bad, as he has hepatitis-c and doesn't get the right medical treatment.

Thomas Kaspers, BuchNr. 1570/5, JVA Moabit , Alt-Moabit 12 a , 10559 Berlin Tiergarten Arrested on 1st May 2005 and had his last trial-day on 18th august 2005, where he got sentenced for 2 years for supposedly throwing a bottle at a police-woman and for "violation of the peace of the land".

Dennis Witt, JVA Halle, Wilhelm-Busch-Strasse 38, 06118, Halle-Saale Arrested on 1st May 2004 and got sentenced for over 2 years, also for "violation the peace of the land".

Tomek Wilkoszewski, Zaklad Karny, ul. Orzechowa 5, 98-200 Sieradz, Poland: Tomek was sentenced to 15 years after killing a nazi in self defence in Radomsko, 1997. He recently appealed against the sentence but with no success.

James Borek LL6803,HMP Blundeston, D-108, Lowestoft, Suffolk, NR32 5BG Sentenced in January 2004 to four and a half years for injuring a cop during the June 18th 1999 "Carnival against Capital" riot in London's financial district.

For a more complete list of anti-fascist and class struggle prisoners, visit the website of Brighton Anarchist Black Cross at www.brightonabc.org.uk

THE OPPOSITION

The British far-right is an eclectic bunch, with organisations varying from those like the British National Party who hold elected office and have serious pretensions to wield power locally, to organisations like the November 9th Society that could best be described as containing one man and a German Shepherd dog. Below are some of the main players.

British National Party

Under Nick Griffin, the BNP has become the most successful far-right party in British history. Neither the National Front nor the British Union of Fascists ever managed to gain a single councillor. The BNP now has 21 councillors. The BNP has proved itself well able to exploit racial tensions between white youths and Asian youths in the north west, and at the same time to present a more respectable face than the BNP under John Tyndall ever did. It remains weak however in London, and is still liable to bouts of internal squabbling, factionalism and resignations.

Do say "Everythings changed since Griffin became leader"
Don't say "If voting changed anything, they'd abolish it"

National Front

Stuck in a rock and a hard place between the slick professionalism of the BNP, and the street thuggery of the White Nationalist Party. The NF's ability to steer a path for itself will determine whether it continues as a shadow of its former self, or if it joins the BNP as a party of some significance. A street march in London early in 2004, drew well under 50 marchers...

Do say "The National Front is the name most synonymous with fascism in Britain"
Don't say "Having marches every now and then's not really working is it?"

White Nationalist Party/Nationalist Alliance/British Peoples Party

This 'group' has had more splits than most Trotskyist groups! Most of its activities are small scale leafleting events, with a recent attempt to hold a march in Bradford banned by the police (as they knew it would be). The WNP/NA/BPP regard the BNP as having sold out. An electoral front group, England First, has also been formed by the WNP, after the Electoral Registrar originally opposed the name White Nationalist Party (standing in elections is presumably not selling out!) One of the odd characteristics about the WNP/NA/BPP is the number of leading members it has who have been thrown out fascist organisations for being informers or agents provocateurs. Such dodgy geezers include party founders Eddie Morrison and Tony White, and they have been joined more recently by Peter Rushton and Mark Cotterill. Tim Hepple will be joining next! It must be costing Searchlight a small fortune!

Do say "Well you are definitely more radical than the BNP"
Don't say "Has your cheque from Gerry Gable arrived?"

Al-Mahijiroun

Al-Mahijiroun want to create an Islamic Republic of Great Britain under sharia law. They want all women to wear the veil and stay at home cooking, cleaning up and making babies. Any woman that strays from the path – to commit adultery, say, should be stoned to death! Al-Mahijiroun describe lesbian and gay men as degenerates and talk about them in the same breath as people who shag animals. Sheikh Omar Bakri has written pamphlets and given lectures where he has described Jews as devils and vermin as the enemies of Islam

Do say "You take a very literal and dogmatic view of the Koran"
Don't say "Don't the vast majority of British Muslims think you're nutters?"

INTERVIEW

Over the page is an interview with a member of Antifa. The opinions expressed are theirs, and don't necessarily reflect the views of Antifa.

Does Antifa just focus on far-right British nationalists?

No. Far-right politics finds a home in every community whether white, black, Christian, Jewish, Muslim or whatever. And they're all as disgusting as each other. Recently there's been a lot of talk about Islamic fundamentalists in particular. Make no mistake, these people are as bad for working class Muslims as the BNP are for working class whites. We're not gonna patronise people in these communities by pandering to these headcases as if they represent anything apart from anti-working class bigots. Working class Muslims are like working class whites, we all have a common enemy and all groups like the BNP and Al-Muhajaroun do is distract us from that and turn us against each other.

What do you think of state-sponsored multiculturalism?

Its basically a cop-out. A way of looking like you take racism seriously when really you're just making a few token gestures. Black History Month means nothing if black lads are five times more likely to get stopped and searched than white lads. Also, things like affirmative action have a really divisive result within the working class. You can't build solidarity between ethnic groups by taking from one and giving o the other, its just more fuel to the fascists' fire.

What's Antifa's approach to anti-fascism?

Well firstly, we reject the Unite Against Fascism and Searchlight approaches. Searchlight because of their working with the police. Police don't just give out information, they always want some back - whether about the left or right. They've also taken part in horrible smear campaigns against some solid anti-fascists. The UAF approach is often tempting to slip into. The idea of uniting everyone against fascism looks good on paper but falls flat on its face in practice. Groups like Labour and the Tories caused the problems which led to the rise of the BNP, so how can they effectively oppose them while maintaining the conditions that these groups thrive in? The problem isn't just fascism itself, but also what causes people to become fascists. And as part of the problem, the mainstream political parties definately can't be part of the solution. We oppose fascism on a class basis: fascism is bad for the working class of any colour. The only way we can fight it is by uniting as a class and fighting not just the fascists themselves, but to improve the conditions in which they flourish. Where possible we oppose fascism in our workplaces and communities - while trying to build a multi-racial class based alternative - but failing that, we attempt to shut down their gatherings and make it hard for them to organise. The harder it is for them to organise, the fewer people who'll get involved and the weaker their movement becomes.

What are the most effective ways of countering fascism (and its root causes)?

I suppose the task is threefold. Firstly, ideological. We've got to get out there and fight for 'hearts and minds', as it were. So leafleting communities, putting on anti-fascist gigs, writing articles in football fanzines all contributes to building an anti-fascist culture. Community and workplace responses to fascism are always the best though. Like when the posties refused to handle BNP election literature, it stopped them in their tracks! So if you work in a community centre, refuse them a meeting room. If you work in a printers, refuse to print their leaflets. These sort of things make it really difficult for them to organise. Secondly, we need to appreciate the need for physical opposition. The BNP might be all shiny suits now but we all know what lurks behind that front. Fascism has always been based on violence. As soon as they are strong enough they will start attacking political opponents as well as gays and ethnic minorities. We don't want to wait for that before we start dealing with them, we know where fascism leads to if left unchecked. Finally, we need to build an alternative. These days, a lot of working class whites feel cheated. And rightly so. But if we, as a class, can't organise to improve our everyday lives, then some political party is going to walk in and claim they can do it for us. At the moment its the BNP. But if people feel represented, then they won't turn to these racist politicians. This doesn't mean build a new party, it means we need to build solidarity with each other - black or white, foreign or British born. We're all workers and that's what counts.

RULES OF ENGAGEMENT

Our tactics and organisational rules are the product of long experience. We believe that to be able to act effectively requires some ground rules. We regard discipline as essential to the success of any anti-fascist venture. Self discipline and group discipline allow us to get the better of our opponents. We expect people to arrive for actions punctually. Being late means exposing those anti-fascists there on time to potential danger. If you are unable to arrive on time, then contact the steward and arrange another place and time to meet up, if possible. We run actions using a stewarding arrangement. The chief steward is chosen based on knowledge of the local area and previous experience. To participate on an action, it is expected that people temporarily subordinate their autonomy to the steward so that we are able to achieve our shared objectives. There is time to argue about a particular decision afterwards, but in our experience, there isn't always time to have a mass meeting when it's kicking off! Don't talk about actions over the phone or by email. If you do, then don't be surprised to be greeted by the police at our 'secret' meeting point! Essentially, use you're your common sense. Don't tell people about actions unless they need to know, and don't brag about them afterwards.

Master Race? My Arse!

CONTACTS

We have groups and contacts all across the country so if you want to get involved get in touch with us and we'll pass your details on to your nearest group.

Phone: 07952 759473

E-mail: info@antifa.org.uk

Website: <http://www.antifa.org.uk>

Post: Box 36, 84b Whitechapel High St, London. E1 7QX

For people in West Yorkshire, you can directly contact

The 635 Group (affiliated to Antifa) at:

E-mail: The635Group@mail.com

Combating fascism isn't just limited to anti-fascist groups, getting involved in class struggle groups in your community or workplace is crucial. You can view listings of class struggle groups around the country at:

www.libcom.org/Britain

'You know I think we should avoid the pie shop as a redirection point'

This picture was created by Slovak anti-fascists. Its subtle message is that fascism is an anti-working class ideology. Either that or it's about monkeys.

